LITTLE CURTAILMENT OF SERVICE ALLOWED STREET CAR COMPANY

Rail Board Permits Requested Cuts Only on Two Lines, Decatur St.-Marietta St., and Irwin St.-McDaniel St.

REDUCTIONS UPON FIVE LINES GRANTED IN PART

On Seven Routes Petitions for Reduced Service Are Altogether Denied--Monthly Statements of Earnings

The state railroad commission Friday handed down its decision on the petition of the Georgia Railway and Power company for authority to revise and curtail service on a number of its routes, principally by cutting out the tripper cars during rush hours.

On only two routes—Decatur street-Marietta street and Irwin street-McDaniel street—was the company's petition granted in full. On five routes the company's petition was granted in part or conditionally, and on seven routes it was altogether denied.

In its order setting out in detail just what it authorizes and denies the commission directs the company, beginning with January, to make monthly reports to it of the gross passenger receipts on each separate route of the entire system, and to furnish with same a report of the gross passenger receipts on each line for the same month in 1914.

The commission not only denied the company's petition for authority to curtail the service on the Piedmont avenue line, but directed that the trippers which now stop at Tenth street be operated to the end of the line.

Attached to the commission's order is an explanatory statement covering forty-three typewritten pages and giving in detail the reasons why the commission did what it did in each instance. Also this statement sets out what the commission holds to be the duty of the street car company to the public and the duty of the public to the street car company.

COMMISSION'S ORDER.

The order, dealing with each separate route included in the company's petition, follows in full:

"Upon consideration of the record in the above entitled matter, and of the evidence and arguments submitted at the hearing in this case had on January 13, 1915, and of report and opinion prepared by the chairman of the commission touching the various prayers of the petitioner, a copy of which said report and opinion is attached to this order, the conclusions announced therein are hereby adopted by the commission, and it is "Ordered that the prayer of the petitioner for authority to revise service on route No. 1, Marietta and Decatur streets, be and the same is hereby granted, and the Georgia Railway and Power company is hereby authorized to establish and maintain service at fifteen-minute intervals on this route from terminus to terminus.

"Ordered further that the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 4, Inman Park to Grant park, be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered further that the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 6, Capitol avenue and Forrest avenue, be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered further: That the prayer of the petitioner for authority to discontinue extra cars now being operated during the morning rush hours on the northern end of route No. 7, Luckie and East Hunter streets, be and the same is hereby granted, and the Georgia Railway and Power company is hereby authorized to discontinue operation of said extra cars during the morning rush hours on the northern end of this route; and that the prayer of the petitioner for authority to discontinue extra cars now being operated during the afternoon rush hours on the northern end of this route be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered further: That the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 8, Inman Yards-White City, be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered Further: That the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 11, Courtland and Spring streets, be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered further: That the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 12, Cooper street-English avenue, be and the same is hereby denied with the provision that the company may, if it elects, change the morning rush hour period on this route to extend from 5:30 a. m. to 7:30 a. m. instead of from 6 a. m. to 7:45 a. m., as at present.

"Ordered further: That the prayer of the petitioner for authority to revise service on route No. 13, Irwin and McDaniel streets, be and the same is hereby granted, and the said Georgia Railway and Power company is hereby authorized to discontinue extra cars now being operated on this route during the morning and afternoon rush hours.

"Ordered further: That the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 15, Piedmont avenue-Central avenue, be and the same is hereby denied, and the said Georgia Railway and Power company is hereby directed, beginning April 1 next, to extend the extra rush hour service now being operated on the northern end of this route to operate at five-minute intervals to the terminus of the line, continuing in effect the extra rush hour service now being operated at ten-minute intervals.

"Ordered further that the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 17, main Decatur line, be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered further that the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 18, South Decatur line, be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered further that the prayer of

PLANS NEW RAILROAD INVOLVING LEASE OF WESTERN & ATLANTIC

Jacksonville - Atlanta - Chattanooga Through Line Contemplated by J. A. J. Henderson, Head of Ocilla Sou.

WILL EXTEND EXISTING ROUTE NORTH AND SOUTH

Bid for Lease of State Road Will Be Submitted to Legislature in Summer, Says South Georgia Capitalist

Plans for a railroad from Jacksonville through Atlanta to Chattanooga, including a bid for the lease of the state road, were announced Friday by J. A. J. Henderson, of Ocilla, Ga., a prominent south Georgia capitalist, who is stopping at the Piedmont hotel.

Mr. Henderson is president of the Ocilla Southern, and he contemplates a decided extension of the railroad in the near future, which will make it one of the best in the state, will make it one of short line to Jacksonville and should play a prominent part in opening up certain sections of south Georgia.

The road already is in operation between Nashville, Ga., and Rochelle, Ga., a distance of seventy-five miles. Mr. Henderson stated that within the next few days the road will be extended to Pope City, Ga., and that its completion from there north to Atlanta and south from Nashville to Jacksonville is only a question of time.

Mr. Henderson is in Atlanta making arrangements in regard to trackage along certain points of the outlined road. He said the road already had acquired most of the right-of-way on its route between Atlanta and Jacksonville, and that he had no doubt the rest will be secured almost immediately. There will be no delay whatever in the work, he declared. Men will be employed sufficient to carry it forward rapidly, and the road will be finished as soon as it is possible for any railroad to be built.

AWAIT LEGISLATURE'S ACTION.

That the road will operate between Atlanta and Jacksonville, already is a safety, says Mr. Henderson. Whether it will be extended to Chattanooga remains to be seen, depending on the action of next summer's legislature regarding the Western and Atlantic road, owned by the state.

If the legislature decides to lease the road, Mr. Henderson says the Ocilla Southern is prepared to bid in a strong bid for the property, thus making another continuous road from Jacksonville to Chattanooga.

Mr. Henderson declares the coming of the new railroad will be of paramount importance to many Georgia cities and towns. It will open up a part of the state which has hitherto been greatly hampered in its agricultural and industrial development by lack of shipping facilities, and may mean a new era of prosperity for a large part of the state that is affected by it.

Its value to Atlanta cannot be overestimated, Mr. Henderson says. Besides convenient passage between this city and Florida, it will brin, greatly increased traffic for the city, and will be the market for the products of every county through which the road will run. Mr. Henderson was for Macon at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon to complete further arrangements in construction.

RUSSIA BEGINS NEW INVASION THROUGH GERMAN TERRITORY

Czar's Forces Attempt to Cut German Lines in East Prussia and Overrun Kaiserland From That Point

AUSTRO-GERMANS SAY RUSSIANS LOST GROUND

Preparations by Rumania to Enter War Has Caused Teutons to Assemble Large Forces on Frontier

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Russia has answered the new Austro-German offensive movement in Hungary and Bukowina with a sudden resumption of the attack on the Germans in their own territory. The Russian army in East Prussia is again attempting to penetrate the German lines, and an official Petrograd report today indicates heavy fighting is in progress. In two sections of the front, it is stated, the Germans were defeated and driven back. For several months there has been little change in east Prussia, the Russians having been halted after penetrating nearly thirty miles beyond the German border.

RUSSIANS RETREAT.

To the south the new Austro-German plan of campaign is developing rapidly. The Austrian army staff announces that the Rusians who invaded northern Hungary have been defeated and forced to retreat. Petrograd military experts expect the main attack will be delivered on the extreme Russian right wing, in western Bukowina, a supposition which is suported by the concentration of Austrian and German troops in Hungary.

Simultaneously with the stiffening of the Austro-German attack, the Turks have brought up reinforcements in the trans-Caucasan region and are again on the offensive.

Russian and Turkish reports are contradictory but it is apparent severe fighting is in progress.

In the west there is less activity. The furious German assaults of the last few days seem to have effected no important results.

Russian claims of victory in east Prussia are disputed in the official German communication today, which states the attacks of the Russian invaders were defeated with heavy losses to them. In central Poland, it is said, the Germans too the offensive and captured Russian trenches.

RAID ON DUNKIRK.

A German aeroplane squadron made a night raid on Dunkirk, dropping bombs in an effort to destroy the British supply stations there. The French official statement announces one German aeroplane was brought down.

Only minor engagements were fought yesterday in France and Belgium. So far secret has been learned from the French and German communications. British efforts to regain lost positions near La Bassee could not send German attacks about Ypres Lens and Arras were equally successful.

Russian Invasion of Germany Carefully Planned This Time

(By Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, Jan. 29.—(Via London.) The attempt of the Russian Tenth army in east Prussia follows practically the lines of the first march of General Rennenkampf, according to that the point settled for the invasion is further north. That was done to avoid a repetition of the Russian defeat in the Mazurian lake district. The present Russian invasion was understood to be more fully prepared and in greater force than the first effort. The objective, the aim is the German fortress of Koenigsburg.

It appears the Germans, who for many weeks had maintained only a small force in that region, have rushed virtually the entire garrison of Koenigsburg to this point.

Russian military experts argue that this Russian offensive movement will force the Germans to abandon the Bzura river line or compel them to draw forces from the western frontier as was done at the time of the first invasion of east Prussia and which materially affected the German advance in the direction of Paris.

There is now no noticeable dimuinition of the almost daily attacks from the fortified line along the Bzura and Rawka rivers.

Russian occupation of Plikallen, on the East Prussian railroad, which skirts the Russian border, was accomplished after an artillery bombardment and battle lasting all day of January 24.

Austro-German Forces Are Preparing Against Rumania

LONDON, Jan. 29.—With the renewal of offensive operations by the Turks in the Caucasus, apparently intended to try to force Russia to send more troops into the field, the Austro-German activities in Galicia and the Carpathians continue to dominate the military situation.

Forces of the Teuton allies are being rushed farther south and strung out nearer the Rumanian frontier to meet any sudden movement over the passes from that country. Recent fighting in the Carpathians has brought no decisive engagement, both the Austrians and the Russians claiming local successes. It is believed in London, however, that the struggle may be expected soon to enter upon a critical stage both in the east and in the west. British military observers think Germany is keeping a preponderance of her forces in the west where the allies should expect another great offensive movement.

Recent German tactics at various points on the western front seem to have cost them heavily and to have brought them little gain, judging by official Paris reports. It is thought here the next development may be a concentrated blow at some strategic point. So far as news is concerned, the Turks supposed to be advancing into Egypt are marooned somewhere on the desert. No word has been heard of them since the announcement three days ago of their presence east of El Kantara, and no further clashes with British outposts have been reported.

POPULAR PASTIME---MAKING ENDS MEET

FACING DEATH ON GALLOWS NEGRO CONFESSES CRIME

Buret Hickman Tells Deputy He Killed Detective Bennett and a Negro

Before the hour set for his execution, Friday for the murder of H. G. Bennett, a railroad detective, at Inman Yard on February 21, 1914, Buret Hickman, a negro, made a full confession to Deputy Sheriff Plennie Miner of killing Bennett, and further confessed that he killed a negro named Sam Sims about three years ago, near Inman Yards.

Sheriff Maugum, after a short religious service, sprung the trap shortly after 11 o'clock. Attending physicians declared Hickman's neck broken. He was dead in about twenty minutes.

Bennett was patrolling the Seaboard Air Line tracks at Inman Yards to catch freight car thieves. He found Hickman and another negro breaking into a car. He attempted to arrest them and Hickman shot him. Retiring the fire, Bennett put a bullet in Hickman before he died. Some days later this wound led to Hickman's discovery and arrest. He was tried on May 1, 1914, found guilty and sentenced to be handged. He appealed his case to the state supreme court and was denied a new trial.

Deputy Sheriff Miner went to Hickman's cell in the tower Friday morning and had a talk with him. He advised the negro to make a clean breast of everything before he died. Hickman confessed to killing Bennett, giving all the details, and Miner then asked him if he ever killed anyone else.

"Yes sir, I killed a nigger named Sam Sims about three years ago in Blandtown," said Hickman. "He and I had a row about a woman and I shot him. They never got me for that." Blandtown is a negro settlement near Inman yards.

S. S. Brand, father-in-law of Bennett a prominent citizen of Loganville, Ga., came to Atlanta for the purpose of seeing the negro executed.

Runaway Girls From Training School Are Detained at Opelika

Playing hobo is believed by officials of the Georgia Training School for Girls to be the only solution of the manner in which three young inmates of the school who ran away from there last Monday could have reached Opelika, Ala., where they were found Friday.

The girls are Mary Blue, aged thirteen; Annie May Partain, aged fifteen, and Willie May Sallor, aged fourteen. They slipped away from the home, which is in the southwestern part of Fulton county on Baker's ferry, last Monday while taking recess, and were seen trudging along the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad tracks toward Columbus.

Search for the girls proved fruitless until Friday, when the superintendent of the school received a telegram from the chief of police of Opelika saying the girls had been arrested there. The superintendent communicated with Sheriff Mangum's office and arranged to have a deputy sent after the runaways. If they will not return of their own free will, requisition papers will be issued for them, said the superintendent.

NO RECEIVER NAMED FOR EMPIRE LIFE CO.; NEW MOVE IS MADE

Judge Ellis Denies Petition of Plaintiffs--Will Hear Argument on Their Amendment Next Monday

Though he declined Friday morning to appoint a receiver for the Empire Life Insurance company, Judge W. D. Ellis, of the Fulton superior court, agreed to hear on next Monday an amendment to the original petition for a receivership filed by J. R. Brown and others, and intimated that the state supreme court might yet have to pass upon the extremely involved mass of litigation which has occupied the lower courts for several weeks.

Judge Ellis held that he had not the right to appoint a receiver until the plaintiffs had laid their case before the recently created insurance board, consisting of the governor, the insurance commissioner and the attorney general, Albert Howell, for the plaintiffs, at once offered his amendment contending that they already had appeared before this mission, that the insurance company had been ordered to comply with certain instructions to set its business in order, that it had failed to do this, and that Insurance Commissioner Wright had thereupon assumed jurisdiction of its affairs. After a conference among attorneys and court, Judge Ellis said he would hear the argument and the amendment next Monday. In the meantime no receiver is named.

HISTORY OF CASE.

The petitioners, certain stockholders of the Empire Life Insurance company, had petitioned for a receiver, and the case occupied four days of argument last week. In the meantime Insurance Commissioner Wright had gone to Augusta, where the company is erecting a new office building, and had assumed jurisdiction in Richmond county, under the belief that the headquarters of the company were there. About this time Judge Ellis had taken jurisdiction in Fulton county, the actual headquarters. When General Wright learned that the case had been filed and not in Augusta, he filed an intervention asking that he might take charge of its affairs under the law giving the insurance commissioner that authority.

When the receivership petition came up the defendant company filed several demurrers. Judge Ellis declined to sustain or to deny these. In refusing also to appoint a receiver, he holds jurisdiction in the case and gives the plaintiffs opportunity to go before the state insurance board with its complaints.

When the court announced its decision Albert Howell, for the plaintiffs, endeavored to show that they already had gone before this board and were therefore now in a position to ask a receivership.

Luther Rosser, for the company, asserted that the plaintiffs' amendment did not allege that the company had failed to comply with the law, and therefore they were not in a position to ask a receiver. The court then announced it would hear argument on this matter next Monday.

TENNESSEE'S VOTERS TO BALLOT ON SUFFRAGE

House and Senate Concur in Calling for Amendment

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 29.—The Tennessee legislature took a definite step toward equal suffrage today when the house of representatives adopted a resolution providing for an amendment to the state constitution giving votes to women. The resolution passed the senate yesterday by a vote of 26 to 2. The vote in the house today was: Ayes 70; noes 14. The resolution must be adopted by the next legislature and then carry in an election before the people before it becomes operative.

Local members of the equal suffrage league are jubilant over the action today.

In anticipation of the vote in the house, many women were on hand, occupying seats on the floor or in the gallery. The house took a recess when the resolution was called up to hear Mrs. Guilford Dudley, of Nashville, president of the local league and Mrs. Alex Scott, vice president of the Memphis league. Mrs. Dudley was allowed ten minutes to speak but declared that she could speak for a million hours and not exhaust the subject. The announcement of the result was received with loud applause.

POPULATION OF CANAL ZONE STEADILY DECREASES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A census of the canal zone shows a loss of 14,126 inhabitants during the past year, the present population being 31,160.

The greatest population since the American occupation was 61,279, in 1912. Since then there has been a steady decrease which is expected to continue until the population is reduced to actual employes of the Panama canal and the Panama railroad on the permanent basis, and persons in the military service of the United States, as the government has adopted Colonel Gorgas's suggestion regarding the removal of the civil population from the zone as a military measure, except in the case of the terminal cities.

Allies of Britain Only Cats' Paws, Says Kaiser's Son

(By Associated Press.)

GENEVA, via Paris, Jan. 29.—Crown Prince Frederick William has sent to the local correspondent of the Associated Press, in response to a request for a statement, the following reply, dated near Verdun, January 22:

"You ask me to send a message to the American people. Being an officer and no diplomat, I have no right to do so, but if you like I will tell you three things.

"First: Every single German and Austrian is quite certain that we will come out on top, and will give his last drop of blood to this end.

"Second: We are convinced that the day will come when the people of Russia and France will find out that they are only doing the dirty work for England.

"Third: We expect from America absolutely fair play in all questions.

"These are my personal ideas, but a good many of my countrymen feel the same. Greetings.

RAGSDALE IS WEAK IN HIS MIND, SON ADMITS ON STAND

Solicitor Dorsey Developes Fact That Lehon, Shortly Before Affidavits Were Made, Paid Over to Tedder $500

LEHON SENT ROGERS TO WARN WITNESSES

H. D. Thomason, State's Witness, Springs Surprise by Swearing He Would Not Believe Ragsdale on His Oath

There were two striking developments Friday in the trial of Dan S. Lehon, Arthur Thurman and C. C. Tedder for subornation of perjury in the Frank case.

First, Judge Arthur Powell, of the defense, brought from C. B. Ragsdale on cross-examination the admission that he has "spells with his mind," and brought from Ragsdale's son, W. A. Ragsdale, the admission that he considers his father's mind unsound.

Second, Solicitor Dorsey put in evidence, over the defense's strenuous objection, a transcript of Lehon's testimony at the hearing of Frank's extraordinary motion for a new trial wherein Lehon admitted paying Tedder $500 when he employed Tedder a few days before the making of the Ragsdale and Barber affidavits. This money Dorsey brought from Dr. B. Wildauer the admission that he was present and saw Lehon pay Tedder the money. (This is the sum the state will undertake to show was divided between Ragsdale, Barber, Thurman and Tedder).

Other features of the morning session were the testimony of W. W. (Bootes) Rogers, employed by the Burns agency during the Burns investigation of the Frank case, that Lehon sent him to Ragsdale's home on and Barber on the night they made the affidavits to warn them not to discuss the affidavits with any one except their counsel; and the testimony of H. D. Thomason, of Nelson, Ga., who once sued Ragsdale, that Ragsdale's reputation for truthfulness and that he would not believe Ragsdale on oath.

Judge Hill announced when court opened at 9 o'clock that afternoon sessions will be held, to hurry along the trial. At 1 o'clock court took recess for lunch and reconvened at 1:30.

The court room was crowded again Friday.

DENIES CHARGE.

Judge Powell, resuming his cross examination of Ragsdale when court opened Friday morning, proceeded directly to question the witness concerning his mental capacity, and dwelt upon this during the remainder of the cross examination.

He asked the witness if it were not true, after the publication of the affidavit became public, that he found himself the subject of much opprobium.

"I don't recall to that," was Ragsdale's reply, "but there was a good deal of excitement."

When Ragsdale professed very little knowledge of church committees sent to see him as the result of the publication of the affidavit Judge Powell asked him if he did not see mention of these committees in the newspapers. To this the witness replied that his family wouldn't let him read the newspapers, fearing he might suffer a mental breakdown.

"Then you claim to be weak minded?" asked Judge Powell.

"People may think I am," replied Ragsdale, "but I don't claim to be."

Upon this preacher, that his mind had never been the same since a spell he had about two years ago.

"Were you not told a short time ago by an attache of the solicitor general's office that you could not be prosecuted for false perjury because you are weak-minded?"

"No."

"Did nobody ever suggest to you that this would be an ample defense if you were prosecuted for perjury?"

KNEW OF AFFIDAVIT

"No."

The witness admitted, however, in reply to questions, that although he made his confession in the early part of less than a year ago, no effort has yet been made to bring him to trial for perjury.

Continuing along the same line, Judge Powell elicited the statement from Ragsdale that he was unconscious a part of the time while in Attorney Rosser's office making the affidavit, that he remembered certain things that happened, but that he was certain of other things, but that his mind cleared before he left the office, and he was rational when he left the office and during the following day and knew enough at that time to realize his affidavit was false.

Resuming his testimony the witness denied he had told the Baptist ministers' conference, several months later, that his recollection was blank at the making the affidavit, blank as to receiving any money, and that the first he knew of the money was when he found it in his pocket upon his arrival at home that night. The witness also denied that he made these statements to the Fulton county grand jury as late as last Monday.

Repeatedly Ragsdale replied: "I don't remember," when asked searching questions, and one of the questions to which he made this reply was: "Didn't you ask Mr. Rosser to keep your affidavit quiet and not let anything about it get into the newspapers?"

Before Judge Powell switched from questions touching Ragsdale's mental status, and turned his attention to questions concerning certain of Ragsdale's business transactions.

In reply to questions, Ragsdale denied that when he was being sued for the recovery of certain property which it was charged he acquired by fraud, he gave as an answer to the suit that he had sold the property. The defense here stated that they would introduce Ragsdale's answer, from the court rec-

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "step there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What these people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy and other good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.—(Advt.)

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat and take Salts for Backache or Bladder trouble

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—(Advt.)

Nearly One Third Supplied by America to Make Exchanges

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Sir Edward H. Holden, managing director of the London City and Midland bank, told the bank's directors today that the "Bank of England at present holds about $345,000,000, of which about $100,000,000 has been supplied by America in order to ease their exchanges."

Discussing Germany's financial mobilization, Sir Edward said:

"Germany's exports undoubtedly will fall off to a much greater extent than her imports, and the adverse balance will have to be paid in gold. Superhuman efforts are being made to increase the gold reserve in the Reichs bank, which now amounts to $520,000,000, but already withdrawals are taking place to pay for imports.

"Plans for the financial mobilization of Germany were carefully worked out long before the war. When hostilities began war banks were created in all the important German towns, and war bank notes were issued to drive gold from circulation into the Reichs bank. There was one effect, however; the Reichs bank note which replaced this gold became inconvertible to gold, which caused the note to fall to a discount."

MOONSHINERS IN PRISON TO HEAR OLD FIDDLERS

Fiddlin' John's Fellows at the Auditorium Next Week, to Play for Prisoners

Fiddlin' John Carson, the Georgia champion, and about forty of his fellow fiddlers, will go out to the federal prison for a concert next Wednesday afternoon in response to an urgent appeal from the moonshiner prisoners in that institution.

The moonshiners, mostly Georgia and Carolina mountaineers, had read in The Journal of the great convention which is to be given at the auditorium beginning next Tuesday night, and inasmuch as they recalled several friends in the list of fiddlers, and as they were hampered by regulations and stone walls from attending the convention, they persuaded Warden Moyer to grant permission for the fiddlers to visit them.

"We'll be mighty glad to go, brother," said Fiddlin' John, when the invitation was extended. "Lots of them fellers come from up around Blue Ridge, my old stampin' ground, and I'm always willin' to oblige a friend. We'll be there Wednesday, with the best line of music that was ever played inside a jail house."

BANKS ARE RETIRING EMERGENCY CURRENCY

Action Indicates General Business Conditions Are Rapidly Improving

Nothing better illustrates the fact that general business conditions are improving than the action of the national banks in retiring increasing amounts of the Aldrich-Vreeland currency, commonly called emergency currency, and which has been issued from time to time since last fall when the crop-moving season began.

Within the past week member banks of the National Currency association of Georgia have made applications to have retired Aldrich-Vreeland currency in sums aggregating about a million dollars. The meeting of the executive committee of the association, held in Atlanta Friday morning, gave most of its time to a consideration of these applications for retirement, whereas a few weeks ago the principal attention of the committee was given to applications of banks for this currency.

No applications for new circulations of this currency were received by the committee Friday and only a small number of applications for substitutions of collateral.

There can be but one interpretation of the action of the banks in retiring Aldrich-Vreeland currency and that is that general business conditions are improving and the banks are finding themselves able to take care of the demands made upon them without calling for Aldrich-Vreeland currency.

GOODYEAR TIRE MEN MEETING IN ATLANTA

Business for 1915 Is Being Mapped Out at Annual Convention

Representatives in the south of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company—some thirty-odd—are holding their annual convention at the Ansley hotel. This convention will continue through Saturday, and is being presided over by District Manager W. E. Harris.

H. T. Boyer, of Akron, O., assistant manager of the motor truck tire department of the Goodyear company, with several other factory representatives, will be here Friday night. The Goodyear tire men will map out their business for the present year, and will exchange ideas for increasing the sales of their tires.

W. E. Taylor, the Atlanta representative of the Goodyear company, is seeing to it that the visitors have an enjoyable time during their stay in the city.

KIDNEY TROUBLES PAINFUL AND ANNOYING

A short time ago I had what is termed Inflammation of the Bladder. At times I thought I would surely go wild. I tried the doctor but he did not seem to hit my case. I did not get any relief from the doctor's treatment. Was advised to try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root by a druggist. I took his advice and began taking Swamp-Root, and after using it a short time began to get better and continued using it until my trouble was gone. Swamp-Root cured me.

I gladly advise any person that is troubled as I was, to try Swamp-Root for it is a good medicine. You can use this if you wish in any way that it will benefit others. My trade is that of a painter. My age is 49.

Very truly yours,
J. H. JOHNSTON,
Watertown, N. Y.

Personally appeared before me, this 28th day of July, 1909. J. H. Johnston, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

FELDER IS CONSIDERED FOR TRADE COMMISSION

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Four of the five men who are to constitute the federal trade commission have been selected by President Wilson, according to reliable information. They are:

Joseph E. Davies, of Wisconsin, now corporation commissioner; William H. Parry, of the state of Washington; Edward N. Hurley, of Chicago, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, and George L. Record, formerly corporation counsel of Jersey City.

President Wilson has not made up his mind concerning the fifth member of the trade commission. It is known that he is seriously considering Thomas S. Felder, former attorney general of Georgia, and it is believed that if the south is recognized on the commission Mr. Felder's name will be included in the five to be sent to the senate for confirmation.

BILL M'DONALD GIVES SAYRE BABY OVERALLS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Captain Bill McDonald, of Texas, who used to be President Roosevelt's body guard, called at the White House today carrying a tiny pair of overalls for Francis Sayre, President Wilson's grandson. The captain said the overalls might be too large, but he expected the baby would "grow up to them."

CAIRO'S CITY TREASURER QUITS WHEN PAY IS CUT

CAIRO, Ga., Jan. 29.—H. M. Johnson, who has held the position as clerk and treasurer of this place for the past four years and who was elected last December for two more years, handed in his resignation to the city council at their regular meeting last night. He gives as his reasons for taking this step that, with the large increase in duties attached to the office and the money stringency, his salary has been reduced.

RAGSDALE IS WEAK IN HIS MIND, SON ADMITS ON STAND

ords in the case, showing that he did make this answer.

At 10 o'clock Judge Powell finished his cross-examination and Ragsdale was questioned for about thirty minutes by Solicitor Dorsey on the redirect examination.

"Judge Powell calls 'doctor,' " said the solicitor. "Are you a doctor of divinity or a medical doctor?"

"I'm not either one."

"Then, where did you get this title which Judge Powell has been so careful to use in addressing you?"

"I reckon I got it from Thurman. He always called me 'Dr. Ragsdale.' "

In reply to questions, Ragsdale declared his mind was normal when he had the telephone conversation with "the deep-voiced man who sounded like Lehon and promised him $10,000 more if the thing went through," and that his mind was normal when he was negotiating with Thurman looking to the making of the affidavit.

The next witness called was W. W. (Boots) Rogers, formerly a Fulton county policeman and later employed by William J. Burns during the Burns agency's investigation of the Mary Phagan murder mystery.

Rogers testified that Lehon sent him to the homes of Barber and Ragsdale, on the evening of the day they made the affidavits, to tell them not to talk to anybody unless it was a Burns agent, and to make the Burns agent show a blue card before taking his word that he was a Burns agent.

Solicitor Dorsey then asked Rogers if it was customary for the Burns agency to warn all their witnesses not to talk, and he said it was. He said he had warned Maude Bailey, and he knew of others who had been warned.

REFUSED TO TALK.

Asked if he ever heard Lehon talk to Ragsdale over the telephone, Rogers replied in the negative. Asked if he ever heard Burns talk to Ragsdale on the telephone, he replied in the affirmative, and detailed the circumstances, as follows:

Burns had sent him to Ragsdale to get the names of more people who would testify to his good character, explaining that some of the people whose names he had furnished were unwilling to indorse him. Rogers failed to see Ragsdale, the family turning him away at the door. On reporting this to Burns, the latter called Ragsdale on the telephone, and got the reply that Ragsdale didn't want to talk. "This is William J. Burns," the detective told him, "I don't give a damn who you are," Ragsdale replied, and hung up the telephone.

After considerable difficulty Solicitor Dorsey got from Rogers a statement making it appear that Burns and Lehon exercised particular care and caution with Barber and Ragsdale.

Judge Powell dismissed Rogers with a few unimportant questions.

Solicitor Dorsey then submitted as documentary evidence an agreement between Thurman and Ragsdale, dated December 24, 1913, wherein Thurman agreed, in consideration of $300 paid him by Ragsdale, to assume certain claims on which Ragsdale was then being sued by H. D. Thomason, of Nelson, Ga. Also as documentary evidence, the solicitor tendered a registered letter from Thurman to Ragsdale, inclosing a bill for $500 attorney's fees with a peremptory note saying if the bill was not made at once he would sue for collection. This letter was dated April 29, 1914, after Ragsdale had repudiated his affidavit.

H. D. Thomason, the man named in the agreement, was then put on the stand as a state's witness, and he sprang a surprise, under cross-examination, by swearing he wouldn't believe Ragsdale on oath.

After he had testified as to suing Ragsdale, Solicitor Dorsey told him, "You may come down."

"Hold on a moment," put in Judge Powell.

"Do you know the general character of C. B. Ragsdale, and is that character good or bad?"

"It is not very good," the witness reluctantly replied.

"Answer the question one way or the other," commanded Judge Hill. "Is his character good or bad?"

"It is bad," replied Thomason.

"Would you believe him on oath?" asked Judge Powell.

"No, I would not."

Judge Powell said, "You may come down."

Then the solicitor stopped him, and asked: "Do you base your opinion of Ragsdale's character on his confession of perjury or upon what you knhw of him previous to that confession?"

SAYS CHARACTER BAD.

"Why, I've known Ragsdale eight or ten years," said Thomason. "His character is notoriously bad. I reckon nobody that knows him would believe him on oath."

Solicitor Dorsey then tendered an affidavit by C. C. Tedder, signed in his office on April 29, after Ragsdale had repudiated his affidavit, in which Tedder swore the first he knew of the affair was when he saw Barber and Ragsdale in Thurman's office about 15 minutes before they went to Attorney Rosser's office and made their affidavits. They appeared to object to talking in his presence, so he left. Later, Tedder continued in this affidavit, he heard Ragsdale say something to this effect: "I didn't want to get into this case, but when I read in the papers about Frank tearing at the bars of his cage until his finger nails were bleeding, it became a matter of conscience with me, and I had to tell what I knew." Later the same day, Tedder continued, he saw Lehon and said: "Well, I understand the preacher made an affidavit," to which Lehon replied: "Yes, Thurman got him to come through." Tedder further swore in the affidavit that he was paid no money and saw no money paid to anyone else.

It developed in connection with the reading of this affidavit that it was dictated by Tedder to the solicitor in the presence of Attorney W. M. Smith, the lawyer for Jim Conley at the trial, who later publicly declared a belief in Conley's guilt of the murder. Tedder, at the time of the Barber and Ragsdale affidavits, had been recently employed in Attorney Smith's office.

IDENTIFIES TRANSCRIPT.

The solicitor put D. O. Smith, court stenographer, on the stand to identify a transcript of Lehon's evidence at the hearing of Frank's extraordinary motion for a new trial, and brought out from the stenographer the fact that the Ragsdale-Barber affidavits were made while that hearing was in progress.

When the stenographer started to read portions of Lehon's evidence, Judge Powell asked that the jury retire from the room, while he voiced a strenuous objection to the admission of Lehon's testimony. He pointed out that the most important statements by Lehon were brought out at the hearing at the direct order of Judge Hill, after the detective had protested against the questions put to him by the solicitor.

Judge Powell cited a decision rendered by Judge Hill, while on the court of appeals, and he called this decision the strongest opinion in America on the subject of inadmissibility of incriminating evidence, given under compulsion by a defendant.

He declared that the solicitor in asking the questions then was seeking to incriminate Lehon, and that Lehon protested at the time because he realized that Mr. Dorsey was endeavoring to secure incriminating evidence.

Judge Hill told the attorney that it was his recollection that Lehon protested because he did not wish to divulge the private monetary transaction of the Burns agency.

Judge Powell asked permission to put Lehon on the stand to show why he objected at the time of the hearing to the solicitor's question, but Judge Hill refused to hear from Lehon, and announced that he would admit the transcript.

The jury returned and the solicitor read most of the detective's evidence, which in substance was an admission that prior to the date of the Ragsdale-Barber affidavits he had received $500 from Herbert J. Haas, of counsel for Frank, the money being part of the ordinary paymenis to the Burns agency for their service.

About April 15 or 16, a week prior to the time the Ragsdale affidavit was made, Lehon testified, according to the transcript, that he employed C. C. Tedder, who told him of several witnesses, most of whom were then in other cities, who might testify in the case, and Tedder offered to go after them. Accordingly Lehon testified he paid Tedder $250 in advance as salary for one month and that he also gave him $250 to be used as expense money in making out of town trips. Lehon testified that at the time of this payment he had not heard of Ragsdale and Barber.

The transcript also showed a statement by Lehon to the effect that Tedder had phoned him that Thurman, with Ragsdale and Barber, was on the way to the Burns office just before they reached there and offered to make the affidavits.

MIND UNSOUND, SAYS SON.

W. A. Ragsdale, son of the preacher, was called by the state, but proved a reluctant witness. The state attempted to show that Thurman telephoned to the Ragsdale residence on the day after the affidavit was made and attempted to talk to the preacher, but this was ruled out by Judge Hill when young Ragsdale admitted that he did not know Thurman's voice and simply took the speaker's word for his identity.

Cross-examined by Judge Powell young Ragsdale made the flat statement that his father is of unsound mind.

The young man stated that his father's mind and his business both failed in 1907, and that since that time his father has frequently had "spells."

Asked by Judge Powell for an explanation of "spells," young Ragsdale said that sometimes his father had a wild look in his eyes, that showed when he was "crazy." Answering question the young man said that he could always tell whether or not his father was sane by looking at him, but didn't know if other people could distinguish his father's lapses.

He said that he didn't notice anything wrong with his father on the day the affidavit was made nor on the following day. He learned, he said, that his father had made an affiavit in the case on April 24 and two days later he first heard Mr. Ragsdale repudiate the affidavit.

He declared that during that time he allowed only members of the Plum Street Baptist church to see his father.

Dr. Ben Wildauer, of 69 Windsor street, friend of Leo M. Frank, was the next witness called to the stand by the state.

Dr. Wildauer said that he, as a friend of Frank, induced Burns to take up the case during March of 1914, but a statement as to the nature of the contract with Burns was ruled out by Judge Hill.

"The witness said that he has always believed that Tedder knows the truth of the Frank case, and that he suggested to the Burns people that they employ Tedder as the latter had worked on the case as an agent for W. M. Smith, Conley's attorney, and was in a way connected with the case.

TEDDER EMPLOYED.

On April 16, he testified, he was present when Lehon employed Tedder, paying him $500 cash, $250 as an advance salary, and $250 for expenses, and he witnessed Tedder's signature to a receipt. Ask why he thought Tedder knew the truth of the Frank case, Dr. Wildaur said that the man when conversing about it always had a suave and knowing smile, and he thought that from Tedder's position as agent for Smith he probably had valuable information.

Replying reluctantly to questions Dr. Wildauer said that he first heard a preacher mentioned as a figure in the case during the fall or winter of 1913, and he admitted that he spoke of the rumor of a preacher to Lehon between the time that he employed Burns and the Burns people employed Tedder.

The solicitor put this question to the witness: "You employed Burns and then set out with Lehon to get a preacher?"

"No, no," answered the witness.

"Then tell the jury what you did."

Dr. Wildauer started to explain that he offered few suggestions to Burns as the latter's expert knowledge made suggestions unnecessary, but Dorsey interrupted, asking the stenographer to read his questions to the witness again. At this point Judge Hill announced a recess of half an hour for lunch.

THEATERS

The success of the Baldwin-Melville company was made apparent yesterday when the matinee crowd packed the Atlanta theater and laughed heartily at "Our Wives." This fine comedy will be given again tonight, Saturday matinee and night. It has made a big hit and has been pleasing all. It will be followed by "The Man From Home," which will be given for the first time at popular prices next week.

There will be matinee and evening performances today and tomorrow at the Forsyth, ending the engagements of Emma Carus and Carl Randall, Jarrow, the comedy magician; Maxine Brothers and "Bobby," the comedy dog.

For next week the bill promises to be one of the most interesting of the season. It will be headed by Jesse L. Lasky's "The Beauties," conceded to be one of the cleverest successes in vaudeville. There are a number of pretty girls who are most attractive and there is a program of musical numbers that appeal.

The triple bill at the Grand Friday in honor of anniversary week attracted large audiences. It was necessary to start the performance an hour before the regular time, so great was the crowd. Three star motion picture productions are being shown—"After Five," with Edward Abeles in the leading role; "The Man Behind the Door," featuring Wally Van, Cissy Fitzgerald and others, and "Puss in the Well," the immortal fairy tale from the "Mother Goose" book. The show will be repeated again Friday night and Saturday matinee and evening.

NEW FILMS TO BE SEEN AT 'MOVIES' FOR CRIPPLES

Arrangements Almost Complete for Performance at Grand Theater Sunday

Arrangements have been nearly completed for the moving picture and vaudeville show which will be given at the Grand theater Sunday for the benefit of the fund to establish a home for crippled children in Georgia.

Five performances will be given, each lasting an hour and forty-five minutes. They start at 2 o'clock, 3:45, 5:30, 7:15 and 9. Among the pictures, all first-run films, will be "The Lion's Den," Pathe Exchange; "Mix-up and All Wrong," United Films Service; "The Last Egyptian," Hybar Film Corporation; "The Three Musketeers," Hybar Film Coporation; "The Country Mouse," Southern Paramount Film company.

The committee of ladies in charge of the show have secured many other attractive features. Mrs. Frank Pearson, the popular Atlanta singer, is on the program, and has been asked to sing "Tipperary." Among the vaudeville numbers are Guy Harris, a clever dancer, the Four Musical Kates, and the Lynch Trio, juvenile stars. A special feature will be Wilson, the Great Shadowscope artist, an Atlanta man who will present a novelty act that has never before been seen on the stage.

Carrying out the purpose of the show, a film will be introduced showing several crippled children, the treatment that is being given them, the need for a home for all crippled children in the state, and the great good which such a home will accomplish. Joe Logan, secretary of the Associated Charities, will make a brief talk regarding this picture.

The following girls and boys will assist in taking collections at the show: Miss Katherine Wilcox, Miss Nina Hymen, Miss Martha Boynton, Miss Erskine Jarnigan, Miss Mary Cohen, Miss Margaret Wilkenson, and Edward Van Winkle, Charlie Shepard and Haralson Argo.

KNIGHTS OF KHORASSAN GIVE GRAND CEREMONIAL

Twenty-Five Tyros Are Lead Across the Burning Sands by Regulars

The regular winter ceremonial of Kibla temple, Knights of Khorassan, held Wednesday night at Pythian castle hall in the Kiser building, was the most successful in the history of the temple.

About 500 of the 800 members of the temple, including 75 or 100 members from out of the city, were present, and out-of-town members took a prominent part in the ceremonial.

Several innovations in the ceremonial were disclosed by the team of the temple for the first time, and the new officers were warmly congratulated on the success with which these and every other detail of the ceremonial were accomplished.

W. H. Heston, for seventeen years a Khorassan and master of ceremonies in Kibla temple since its institution twelve years ago, stated that he has seen ceremonials by the leading temples throughout the country, and this ceremonial excelled anything he ever saw.

Twenty-five tyros were caged with the tigers and camels of the temple and were led across the burning sands into the realm of initiation.

CLEAR, BALMY DAY IS PREDICTED SATURDAY

A clear, balmy day is predicted by the weather man for Saturday. All chances for a blizzard striking Atlanta have vanished, as the cold wave which has held the northwest in its grip has lessened considerable. It was only 12 degrees below zero at St. Paul Thursday night instead of 24 below as was the case the night before. In Atlanta the mercury went only as low as 28 degrees. No rain is in sight, and Saturday and probably Sunday should be fine days both.

DR. McCONNELL BACK FROM TRIP TO FLORIDA

Dr. F. C. McConnell has returned to the city after an absence of two weeks, and will resume his work at the Druid Hills Baptist church next Sunday.

Dr. McConnell has been conducting a series of meetings at Kissimmee, Fla., where he preached to overflowing houses. Dr. McConnell is a preacher of rare force and spirituality, and his congregation will extend a cordial greeting as he mefets with them on Sunday.

"JITNEY 'BUS" MAKES APPEARANCE IN ATLANTA

It costs you only a nickel now to automobile from Five Points to the junction of Peachtree and West Peachtree streets, beyond Seventeenth street, according to J. F. Hazleton, of 41 West Cain street, who has brought the first "jitney 'bus," a touring car, to Atlanta, and is saving up the jitneys rapidly by this mode of travel, which has acquired such popularity in other cities throughout the country.

FIRE IN COTTON STEAMER QUENCHED AFTER FIGHT

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—A fire which started in the hold of the steamship Preston soon after she left her pier at Staten Island last night bound for Swedish ports, caused Captain Fehr to turn back and the vessel was beached on a small island in the bay. After several hours' work by the crew, assisted by fire and police patrol boats, the fire was under control.

The Preston's cargo consisted of cotton, oil and cocoa. The fire was confined to the forward hold containing cotton.

Social Leader Joins In Suffrage Fight

Mrs. T. F. Walsh

The Woman's Congressional union for woman's suffrage is waxing strong on account of recent discouragement.

Despite the recent unfavorable action of congress on the Bristow-Mondel suffrage amendment, the union has gained many new members recently, among them Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, social leader, woman of wealth and a resident of Washington.

Mrs. Walsh has been made a member of the union's advisory council.

METROPOLITAN QUARTET TO SING HERE TONIGHT

Songs From the Opera and Popular Ballads on Program for Evening

At the concert Friday night at the auditorium by the Metropolitan quartet, under the auspices of the Alkahest lyceum course, songs from the operas and ballads dear to every music lover will be sung.

Among these will be: "To a Wild Rose," duet from the first act of Faust; "Across the Still Lagoon," "Invictus," "Sanceman," "Gloria," "Viking Song," "Absent," "I Arise from Dreams to Thee."

Members of the Metropolitan quartet are the best known singers on the lyceum circuit. They are Charles N. Neth, tenor, who has sung in grand opera in Germany; Paul Chase, tenor, soloist for many years in principal churches in Cleveland, Ohio; John Eberly, baritone, who was featured by the International Keith circuit; and Thomas Wade Lane, basso, known as an actor as well as a singer. Mrs. Will Page Lane is accompanist.

POLICE TO KEEP SHARP EYE ON BARBER SHOPS

Licenses Will Be Forfeited Unless They Are Kept Very, Very Clean

Barbers, beware! If you cannot beware, be sanitary anyway, for if you are not, the coppers of Atlanta will assuredly get you and make you forfeit that license.

Special orders were read to the morning wath and evening watch Friday, instructing all policemen in the city to visit the barber shops and see that they are kept nice and clean in accordance with the new laws governing barber shops recently passed by the legislature.

The special orders were issued at the request of Secretary R. E. Rollins of the state board of barber examiners. Mr. Rollins wrote a letter to the mayor asking the co-operation of the police department in regulating local shops.

Soft, Fluffy Hair Always Aids Beauty and Charm

Girls and women of all ages want to be charming, beautiful and attractive—it's their birthright—but stringy, thin and lifeless hair destroys half the beauty of a pretty face.

If your hair is not beautiful, is falling out, streaky, full of dandruff, too dry, or if the scalp itches and burns, use Parisian Sage. Rub it well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish them, and stimulate the hair to grow strong and luxuriant. Parisian Sage removes dandruff with one application and cleanses the hair of dirt, dust and excess oil. It will cool and invigorate the scalp and make the hair doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage is a scientifically made preparation that gives the hair just what is needed to make it soft, fluffy, thick and gloriously radiant. It is delicately perfumed; is inexpensive, and can be had at all drug and toilet counters or from Jacobs' 11 stores.

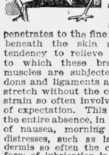
Men Pay Homage to Mother's Friend



"I am not surprised to observe the number of men who come into the store to purchase 'Mother's Friend,'" remarked a leading druggist. It is a happy thought to send hubby to the drug store. "Mother's Friend" is applied externally over the abdominal muscles. It is a gentle, soothing lubricant, penetrates to the finenetwork of nerves beneath the skin and has a marked tendency to relieve the muscular strain to which these broad, flat abdominal muscles are subjected. The cords, tendons and ligaments are thus permitted to stretch without the corresponding surface strain so often involved during the period of expectation. This in part accounts for the entire absence, in many cases reported, of nausea, morning sickness and other distresses, such as laceration of the epidermis so often the case when this gentle form of lubrication is neglected.

"Mother's Friend" has been highly recommended by a host of women who know from experience and by men who know from observation. Write Bradfield Regulator Co., 308 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and we will send you a valuable little book to expectant mothers.

PUBLIC WILL BE BARRED FROM HI COMMENCEMENT

Spring Pageant Shortly Before Final Exercises Will Be Open to All

Nobody will see the senior class of the Girls' High school graduate this year unless they are especially invited, since for the first time in the history of the institution no admission is to be charged to the commencement exercises and they will be more or less private.

At the same time the public will be given a chance not only to see the "sweet girl graduates," but the majority of the girls from the other classes in a spring pageant which will be held at the auditorium shortly before commencement.

This was the plan submitted to the board of education by Miss Jessie Muse, principal of the Girls' High school, and Miss Anna Wise, principal of the English-Commercial High school, Thursday afternoon. It was approved by the board.

It was decided to hold the pageant, in which over 1,000 students of the two institutions will take part, at the auditorium on April 15. A small admittance fee will be charged. On June 4 the graduating exercises of the two schools will be conducted in Taft hall, and only those will be admitted to the hall who have been invited by special card.

In years past the graduating exercises have often been marred by trouble over tickets. There is always a great crowd eager to see the exercises in addition to friends and the families of the graduates, and by having the exercises and the pageant separate, Miss Muse hopes to relieve the congestion that invariably results. The auditorium will seat comfortably all who want to see the exercises and who will be equally satisfied to see them in the form of the pageant. So, when the young ladies are given their diplomas later at Taft hall, there will not be such a demand for admittance and only those who are best entitled to view the graduation will be allowed in the hall.

LANFORD TO CONTINUE HEAD OF CITY PRISON

T. B. Lanford was re-elected superintendent of the city prison for another term Thursday afternoon by the prison committee of council. Josh Tye, assistant superintendent, had been an active candidate for the position for a month or more, but his name was withdrawn shortly before the committee meeting, and Lanford was unanimously nominated.

While the election must be ratified by council, that action is generally a matter of form, when there is no contest before the committee.

This will be Lanford's sixth term in the position.

Tye was re-elected assistant superintendent, but the appointment of all other subordinates was left to the superintendent.

In nominating Lanford, Alderman J. W. Armistead paid a tribute to the efficient manner in which the stockade has been managed during his administration.

500 IDLE MEN TO GET JOBS BACK IN MARIETTA

Two Chair Companies Will Resume Operation on Full Time Monday

Over 500 men who have been thrown out of work since early last fall will get their jobs back again in Marietta Monday morning and begin working on full time.

They are employes of the Marietta Chair company and the Brumby Chair company, two of the largest manufacturing plants in the state. About three months ago conditions forced the factories to shut down, but the recent revival of trade activity throughout the country has convinced the managers that they will be justified in reopening permanently.

The Marietta Chair company employes about 150 men and carries a weekly payroll of about $1,200. The Brumby Chair company has about 400 workmen and a $2,500 weekly payroll.

There has been not a little hardship felt in Marietta among the working folk on account of the closing down of the mils, and the announcement that they will open again Monday has caused jubiliation and a spirit of confidence among all citizens of the town.

DR. GUTHRIE ADDRESSES ATLANTA DRAMA LEAGUE

Essentials to Improving Drama Discussed at Meeting at Georgian Terrace

"The theater as it is now operated, with its present ideals, must be destroyed before we can improve the drama," said Dr. William N. Guthrie, in an address before the Atlanta Drama league Thursday afternoon at the Georgian Terrace.

"We have learned that sound is not absolutely necessary—the movies have taught us that—but we do want the sound. The greatest of the moving pictures leaves us with a feeling of something lacking. That something is the poetry of the drama, the poetry of manifold action, blended into an harmonious production.

"This will require most of our American and English actors to learn all over again the art of verbal expression.

"The moving picture is the saviour of the drama. It is not, however, the end; it is the means to a higher, nobler drama. A drama where the money-maker and the speculator are left out and the artist and producer are in.

"When a modern producer takes a play he alters it so much to conform to what he considers a set standard, that one seldom recognizes the original. He insists on playing Beethoven to ragtime, as it were."

FIFTH REGIMENT PRAISED AS PROTECTIVE AGENCY

Colonel Hall Tells Ad Men What National Guard Means to Atlanta

The value of the Fifth regiment as a protective and civic institution was interestingly set forth by Colonel Orville H. Hall, commander of the regiment, at the military luncheon given by the Atlanta Ad Men's club at the Ansley hotel Thursday afternoon.

Colonel Hall said the regiment means more for the protection of life and property in Atlanta than any other one agency outside of the city police department. He said instance after instance can be cited where tax and insurance rates have been decreased by reason of this protection. And yet, said Colonel Hall, the regiment is seriously handicapped by the attitude of employers of the regiment's members, who frequently refuse to let them attend drills and other military duties required.

At the conclusion of Colonel Hall's address the Ad Men assured him of their hearty co-operation in the movement to bring about better co-operation between employers and the regiment.

The meeting was presided over by Sr. Elmo Massengale, president of the club.

BUSINESS DISAGREEMENT RESULTS IN A FIGHT

J. H. Bickerstaff, a brick manufacturer of 617 Edgewood avenue, slapped the face of J. Linden Bowles, an architect, in a fight the men had on the seventh floor of the court house Thursday afternoon.

The fight followed a series of warrants taken by the men against each other following a business disagreement. The hearing Thursday before Judge Luther Z. Rosser, Jr., in the municipal court on a warrant against Bowles, was dismissed. Following that came the fight. Bowles then took a peace warrant against Bickerstaff.

Had Tuberculosis of Glands---Now Well

Glandular Tuberculosis has yielded to Eckman's Alterative when other remedies failed. Read what it did in this case:—

"257 Lauriston St., Philadelphia, Pa. Gentlemen:—In March, 1909, my doctor pronounced my case Tuberculosis in the Glands, and a number of operations in a hospital failed to benefit me. In the meantime a friend of mine advised Eckman's Alterative. The wounds in my neck were still open and in a frightful condition when I started to take it. After taking two bottles I found I was improving, having gained weight, could eat and was able to sleep. I continued using it until I was well. On November 11, 1910, I started to work, and since that time have not lost one day's work through sickness. I highly recommend Eckman's Alterative to any one who is suffering from Tuberculosis." (Abbreviated.)
(Affidavit) JOSEPH R. WHITE.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size, $1; regular size, $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. GRIFFITH, 1568 Constant St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."—Mrs. ADA WILT, 303 Walnut St., Hanover, Pa.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN NO. 154

"Come Unto Me" Caged Men

"They bound him with fetters of brass—and He did grind in the prison house."—Judges 16:21.

Billy Sunday said to listening thousands:

" 'Thou shalt not k ll.' "

"Somebody says---'We are all right, there, Bill. We haven't murdered anybody.'

"But, listen! There are other ways of killing besides sticking a dagger in somebody's heart, shooting his brains out, pounding his head to a pulp with a club or an axe. There are other ways of killing."

He might have said:

"For example, the blood of the man shot down before the door of a club in Atlanta, where he had been drinking and playing cards, is on the hands of the Councilmen who voted the permit to the club, is on the hands of the man who, by his vote, elected these Councilmen who caused this killing by licensing known violators of the law---Is on the hands of the citizens who tolerate these liquor-selling, law-defying clubs!"

The Philadelphia North American, commenting upon Sunday's sermon, quotes Edward Alsworth Ross of the University of Wisconsin saying:

" 'Modern sin takes its character from the mutualism of our time---

" 'Interdependence puts us, as it were, at one another's mercy---

" 'The essence of the wrongs that infest our articulated society is betrayal rather than aggression---

" 'The sinister opportunities presented in this webbed social life have been seized unhesitatingly, because such treasons have not yet become infamous---

" 'The man who burglarizes with a "rake off" instead of a jimmy, or scuttles his town instead of a ship, does not feel on his brow the brand of a malefactor. The shedder of blood, the oppressor of the widow and the fatherless, long ago became odious, but latter day treacheries fly no skull-and-cross bones flag at the masthead---

" 'If there is blood-letting, the long range, tentacular nature of modern homicides eliminates all personal collision---

" 'Our iniquity is wireless, and we know not whose withers are wrung by it. The hurt passes into the vague mass, the public, and is there lost to view. Hence it does not take a Borgia to knead 'chalk and alum and plaster' into the loaf, seeing one cannot know who will eat the loaf or what gripe it will give him---

" 'The owner of rotten tenement houses whose 'pull' enables him to ignore the orders of the health department, foredooms babies---

" 'Undiscerning, the people chastise the old sins, but spare the new---They do not see that "boodling" is treason, that blackmail is piracy, that tax-dodging is larceny, that railroad discrimination is treachery, that factory labor of children is slavery---

" 'The child-beater is forever blasted in reputation, but the exploiter of child toil stands a pillar of society.' "

But people are beginning to see. These things are fast becoming infamous in men's sight, because they are beginning to understand "the mutualism" "the interdependence" and their joint responsibility.

We are beginning to understand. Before he was bound with fetters of brass and put to grinding corn for the enemies of God, Sampson had shackled himself with the chains of sin, he had betrayed himself and in betraying himself, had betrayed Israel and his fellow-men.

Our own individual failures appall. And we begin to see our share in all.

To illustrate---You have seen the recent effort in our city to filch, under the guise of charity, from men their day of rest. An ordinance, in direct violation of the law of Geogia, has already been proposed to open certain stores upon that day. We share the guilt, if we let others steal from us God's gift, our day of rest.

Again, this shame, this stain is ours---

Our representatives in Council, elected by us, license a violator of the law to run a saloon for negroes in Decatur street. This week a bar-tender shot a negro there.

And now our County Commissioners are proposing, for economy's sake, to cage our convicts, whom we breed with our lawlessness, law-breaking saloons and locker-clubs---to cage them in cages on wheels.

Man, have you ever seen one of these unspeakable things?

In menageries, restless jungle beasts prowl back and forth, a hopeless walk, which now and then the giant cats vary by springing upon the shelves which line their cage, then down again to the floor, panting for the liberty of the wild---

Their cage for beasts is palatial compared with these which already disgrace some of Georgia's Counties---cages where men made in the image of God, men in chains look out not through straight bars such as confine the tiger or lion, but through bars which cross, recross, and cross---

Think of the Cross of Christ!

God grant that our County Commissioners refuse to take this backward step in handing the prisoners of Fulton County---Refuse to make us parties to this cruelty!

Georgia has suffered long enough from lawlessness and disregard for human life and sorrow.

Add not this to our disgrace!

Convicts are men, who have sinned. God calls them with you to repent.

Christ's word, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden---" He spoke to all---He speaks to all who feel the weariness, the burden, the drag of the shackling chain of sin.

Brother--- You are not a convict?

No. But you are a sinner in chains.

Hear Christ. Turn you.

"Turn ye. Turn ye from your evil ways. Why will you die?"

"Repent you, therefore, and turn again, that your sins may be blotted out---"

"Come unto Me."

Betray not yourself and your fellow-man.

Sounds like spring, so many new plants springing up.

We have heard before of congress overriding the president, or at least we have heard intimations that congress might do such a thing. It has usually ended, however, by the president swaying congress.

Talking Across the Continent.

"Hello, Mr. Watson, are you there?"

It was Alexander Graham Bell who was speaking, the inventor of the telephone. He was seated at a desk in New York and was questioning a friend in San Francisco, three thousand five hundred miles away. His eyes shone as he caught the response.

"Fine, fine!" he continued. "I hear your voice as distinctly as though you were in a room adjoining this office. Oh, yes! I certainly do remember the day, back in 1875, when you and I talked over two miles of wire, and thought it was a marvelous thing. Here we are now talking across the continent."

The ocean-to-ocean telephone line inaugurated this week is a distinctive triumph in an age crowded with scientific achievement. Heretofore the longest distance over which the telephoning was altogether satisfactory was from New York to Denver; and thousands of men now living remember how crude and halting were the earlier results from this instrument. Indeed, it was less than forty years ago that Prof. Bell patented his invention; and at the Centennial Exposition of 1876 it was exhibited as a curiosity. Today it is as commonplace as a clock, yet as wonderful withal as a genie.

There is no reckoning what the telephone has done for business, or its daily, hourly service in human affairs. It has given man a sixth sense. With a vital cord, it links homes, and neighborhoods and cities and States and nations. A word is spoken on the shore of the Atlantic, and is heard all but instantly at the Golden Gate.

Kitchener's declaration that the war will begin in May is not intended as a picnic declaration.

Well, there is comfort in this period of the high cost of living. The cable rates to Honoluiu have been reduced.

Mexico's Phantom Presidents.

Mexico's eight "Presidents," since old Diaz fled, have been likened to the eight phantom kings that appeared to Macbeth. Certainly, they have been as insubstantial as so many ghosts. Each has fallen and faded before the fierce, changeful spirit of the time.

Madero meant well enough, and in happier circumstances might have accomplished the high mission he set out to perform; but he was not strong enough to cope with the forces about him, especially when they took the form of murderous treachery. Huerta, called "President" by virtue of the fact that he ruled for a season at Mexico City, had all the vices with little of the strength of a downright villain. Since his expulsion, the country has been practically without a government, though heaven knows it could be no worse off than it was under Huerta.

What will be the outcome of the present hubbub? Time alone can tell. It seems certain, however, that should the United States venture upon intervention, all the factions would unite in war against this country.

There is a worthy disposition on the part of the various Mexican factions to take turn about in capturing Mexico City.

The Hospital and the College.

It is gratifying to know that an agreement has been reached where the physicians on the staff of the Atlanta Medical College will serve at Grady hospital during the scholastic term, from October to June, the remaining months to be given over to physicians not affiliated with the College staff. The plan is acceptable to all interests concerned, and is a credit to the Grady trustees who effected it.

Educational authorities agree that the best results both for public hospitals and for medical colleges are secured when the two co-operate. The college strengthens the hospital, and the hospital strengthens the college. It is upon this basis that the greatest institutions of the kind in America, notably those at Boston, St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Baltimore, are conducted. It is fortunate for Atlanta that its municipal hospital and its medical college conform to this sound policy.

The Atlanta Medical College is an invaluable asset to the community, to the State and to the entire South. It is ranked in Class "A" by the American Medical Association, a fact that speaks eloquently of its high standards and its usefulness. Its service to Grady hospital will continue and its own prestige will grow apace.

President Wilson's recent frank discussion about the inconveniences and stress of his high office will not have the effect of deterring ambitious candidates for the job.

The Republican Filibuster.

There is a growing impression, says The Journal's Washington correspondent, that the Republican filibuster against the Ship Purchase bill will wear itself out, and that this measure, together with waiting appropriations, can be passed at the present session of Congress. That is cheering news. The country longs for legislative repose. The last two years have been crowded and tense with political activity. Constructive and fruitful years they have been, the most telling in half a century of the national government; but the changes they have brought, the new standards they have set up, call for many readjustments in business affairs. The public's thought should be diverted from Congress, for a season, and fixed undividedly on work-a-day tasks.

An extra session can scarcely be avoided, however, unless the Ship Purchase bill is enacted by March. That is one piece of legislation which is essential to the country's common interests, and to its immediate interests. For lack of an adequate merchant marine, American trade is falling short of its opportunities in foreign markets and American shippers are paying exorbitant rates on ocean transportation. The South is vitally concerned in the establishment of ample means for carrying its cotton to Europe; and the West equally so, for its foodstuffs. Indeed, every field of production and commerce is involved in this important matter.

The Administration rightly insists, therefore, that the Ship Purchase bill, the only feasible plan of relief, be made a law at the earliest moment possible. To this end, the Democrats of the Senate are pledged all but unanimously, and so soon as the measure is brought to a vote it will pass. The Republican minority, however, has undertaken a filibuster with a view toward keeping the bill from passage by talking away the Senate's time until the hour when Congress must adjourn arrives. They will hear to no limit on debate. In fact, they will not discuss and decide the issue on its merits; they propose to decide it by sheer wind power. They offer no plan of their own for relieving the situation which the Ship Purchase bill is designed to meet; but they stubbornly oppose the Democratic measure. They will do nothing themselves, but they try to block the way of others who would and can.

The New York World well asks in this regard: "What is the country going to do about a matter that is preventing a full resumption of American industry?"

We can advise the obstructive Republican minority in the Senate of what the country will not do. It will not back up the Burton-Lodge-Root filibuster in trying to kill off the Administration's plan of relief unless they offer some more effective plan in its stead. It will not support a mere policy of negation against direct Government effort to provide lower rates and more ship room. It will least of all support such a policy as a mask for a subsidy raid on the Treasury. Do any of the Senators named think they can talk the Republican party back into power on a policy of do-nothing when the country cries out that something must be done? A solid measure of relief from this war-burden upon American industry is within reach. The Administration presents a plan which can admittedly be made effective in large degree. What is the opposition plan? Just filibuster?

If the Republicans persist in their present tactics, and by their filibuster make necessary an extra session of Congress, they will be held responsible for a double ill. They will bear the reproach of having kept from the country a sorely needed measure of relief and of having forced upon the country an extra session of Congress at a time especially inopportune. From a purely political standpoint, that would be plainly to the advantage of the Democrats; but as a matter of national interests and needs, it is to be hoped that the minority in the Senate will think better and abandon their narrow policy of obstruction; or, that failing, that their wind power will be exhausted.

The English parliament will very probably be in favor henceforth of keeping the English navy up to full standard.

Editorial Echoes

The great secret of succeeding in conversation is to admire little, to hear much; always to distrust our own reason, and sometimes that of our friends; never to pretend to wit, but to make that of others appear as much as possible we can; to hearken to what is said, and to answer to the purpose.—Benjamin Franklin.

Punishment if not prohibition of bachelorhood by taxation looms up every session in one or other of the forty-eight legislatures of these United States. New Jersey is the latest sovereign Commonwealth to produce a statesman who is convinced that the social ills of the times will be alleviated, if not eradicated, by forcing every unmarried man of thirty and upwards to pay $50 a year for the privilege of remaining single. Thus a bachelor would be classified with a corporation which is taxed specially on account of the privileges allowed it by law.—Philadelphia Press.

Miss Mary V. McAllister, 6 years of age, in a dress made of American flags to represent "Maiden America," went to the White House today with a speech all prepared to say to President Wilson. But Mr. Wilson smiled and she forgot the piece. She hesitated a minute—fumbled with an autograph album she carried and finally said:

"I'm awfully glad to see you, Mr. President."

Mr. Wilson was glad, too, and they shook hands warmly.—New York Herald.

Shakespeare Says---

I have neither the scholar's melancholy, which is emulation; nor the musician's, which is fantastical; nor the courtier's, which is proud; nor the soldier's, which is ambitious; nor the lawyer's, which is politic; nor the lady's, which is nice; nor the lover's, which is all these: but it is a melancholy of mine own, compounded of many simples, extracted from many objects, and indeed the sundry contemplation of my travels, in which my often rumination wraps me in a most humorous sadness.

"To Get By" Defined

Nearly all slang is language in the making. The Kentucky court of appeals recognizes the use of the expression "to get by" and construes it in deciding an important case. The opinion is written by Judge Hurt, who says:

"'To get by' means to do some act and escape the injurious consequences which usually attend such an act."

An excellent definition. The expression is in common use. If the lexicographers have failed to take note of it it devolves upon a legal body to define it.

A man who stays out till 3 o'clock in the morning and tells his wife that he got home at "a quarter of 12" "gets by" with it if his wife has not heard the rather stale story in which the belated husband, called down by his wife after an electric light is switched on to show that the clock's hands stand at 3, explains blandly that three is a quarter of twelve, according to all reliable mathematicians. A man who acknowledges that he owes the amount mentioned, but tells the bill colector to call next Saturday—when he intends to be safely out of town—hands the caller a good cigar and bows him politely out of the office, "gets by" with it. The politician who makes prodigious promises which he does not intend to carry out; the political party which drafts a vote-getting platform intended for campaign purposes only, and is not, as a result of having disregarded it after the election, defeated at the next election; the cook who responds to the employer's timid and courteous suggestion that the steak is overdone by asserting emphatically and contemptuously that no steak was ever better cooked; the young man who captures the heiress by pretending that money is no object to him; the peroxide blonde who convinces the enamored young man that she never "did a thing" to her hair in her whole life; the actress who causes the newspapers to be informed that her diamonds have been stolen; the mule which pretends innocence until the intended victim gets within leg's length; the girl who knew that the man would propose before the man had any idea that he would, yet expresses amazement that he could "see anything in me," provide examples of "getting by."

Under the sanction of the court of appeals to charge any one with "getting by" is good English, no doubt, but it is bad taction unless the charge can be proved. It may involve you in a damage suit if the act alleged to have been "gotten-by-with" is discreditable and the allegator can substantiate his assertion.—Courier-Journal.

The Filibuster Weakens.

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28.—Although there has been no apparent change in the legislative situation in the senate as regards the shipping bill, the prospect of an extra session of congress is not so strong today as earlier in the week. The impression is growing that the Republicans will weaken at the last minute and that the president's ship purchase bill will have easy sailing.

The fact that none of the more important appropriation bills has been considered by the senate is not regarded as materially bearing on the possibility of an extra session. All of them can be put through in a jiffy, once the calendar is cleared of the shipping measure.

Edward V. Murphy, chief of the corps of official reporters of the senate, has had long experience in observing legislative, session-end jams, parliamentary tangles and historical filibusters in the senate. He has no means of knowing whether the Republicans will persist in their present filibuster, but he has every confidence in the ability of the senate to pass every appropriation bill before March 4 if the decks are cleared within twelve hours of adjournment time.

"I remember way back in the forty-seventh congress, when an extra session seemed inevitable, how the senate disposed of the legislative, executive and judicial, the sundry civil, and the general deficiency appropriation bills in a few hours," said Mr. Murphy today.

"At midnight on the eve of March 3, on which date congress would have been adjourned by constitutional limitation, these three appropriation bills had not been touched by the senate. The sundry civil and the legislative bills were loaded down with important matters and provided for the expenditure of millions. It seemed impossible that these bills should be debated, amended, passed, sent to conference and the conference reports agreed to in the few hours remaining.

"But history fails to record that an extra session was called to deal with the situation. As a matter of fact the bills went through the regular legislative procedure and were disposed of and signed by the president by noon on March 3.

"Only the last page of each bill had been enrolled to receive the signature of the president, but the enrolling committee gave the executive every assurance that they would be properly enrolled, so he signed them without question."

The situation in the senate right now is both better and worse than it was at the time spoken of by Mr. Murphy. Of the eleven big appropriation bills only one had been disposed of to date, but there remains many, many days in which to handle the others, if the Republicans will let up in their filibuster.

The Republican leadership in the senate insists of course that there will be no let up in the filibuster, and that the appropriation bills will fail of consideration if the Democrats persist in keeping the shipping bill before the senate. The Republican leadership would be foolish, indeed, to make any admission to the contrary. If it planned to give up the fight tomorrow, the leaders would very likely say the same thing.

The Republican senators, in their individual capacities, are no more anxious for an extra session than are the Democrats, individually and collectively. All hands are anxious to quit, to leave Washington and to return to their constituents and make ready for future campaigns. The Republicans, collectively, may think it good politics to force the president to call an extra session, but they do not cherish the idea of having the responsibility for the call placed upon their shoulders.

So, in these circumstances, it would not be surprising if the Republicans laid down after prolonging the filibuster for ten days or two weeks, thus leaving ample time for the consideration and passage of the appropriation bills. They know what the veteran official stenographer knows: that all the appropriation bills can be disposed of in a very little while, if they are given the right of way in the senate.

ON CONSOLIDATING RURAL SCHOOLS

THE recently opened school at Florida Heights is an excellent example of the benefits of consolidating rural school districts to give the children the benefit of better educational facilities than can be provided at any single-room one-teacher school house.

A one-room school house presided over by a competent teacher can be highly useful to a community. There are many distinguished Americans who are alumni of primitive country schools. Not a few of them have left the traditional little log school house for positions of distinction in industry, the law, the national government, art, science, even letters, without going by way of the university. But that proves the efficiency of the irrepressible American, and not that of the log school house. It was not because he was ill educated that Abraham Lincoln became a great man. Because he had an unconquerable spirit, and an infinite capacity for hard work, he became the man of his period and his country, and one of the notable men of the world history, despite the handicap of a lack of early advantages.

It is not true, as a few ultra conservatives still argue when the importance of the consolidation of rural public schools is urged, that the single-teacher school is best, there would be no reason for the existence of universities. The student ambitious to acquire a thorough academic education would choose a private tutor. The old-fashioned method of learning law or medicine by sweeping out the office of the lawyer or physician and getting in exchange for that service access to his books and the experience of an assistant in his practice would be preferable to attending a modern school of medicine or law and learning a profession under the tutelage of specialists.

The consolidated school is the modern development of the public school. Nobody argues that the backwoods school house with its single room and its one teacher is superior, or equal, of the city public school in which the various branches are taught by instructors chosen for their special ability in special fields. What the larger cities have had for quite a while the rural districts are acquiring gradually. Wherever there is a consolidated school there is a community asset of first importance. Farmers formerly asked, when considering the purchase of land: "Where is the public school?" Nowadays the question is, in progressive states, whether there is a consolidated school within easy reach, and whether the farm offered for sale lies within the district included by the consolidation. Land values are affected accordingly. It is being more and more widely recognized that it is just as important to give the boys and girls in the family an opportunity to go to a modern school as it is to equip the farm with modern machinery, and increase its productiveness by modern methods of agriculture.

Wherever the condition of public roads or other transportation facilities make it practical for rural school districts to be consolidated the old-fashioned, one-room, one-teacher "one-horse" school should give way to the modern improvement upon its primitiveness and limitedness. Jefferson county, much of the rural part of which is in a state of social undevelopment, needs more consolidated schools. In donating to, and in devoting themselves to the promotion of, the school at Florida Heights, Mr. and Mrs. Thruston Ballard have set a good example of highly useful social service. There is no better form of public service than to give advantages to one's neighborhood.

Consolidated schools are making elementary education not only more thorough, but also more palatable to pupils than it can be made in the one-room school house. Where forty years ago the school boy "creeping like a snail unwillingly to school" is no longer seen. To enlist the interest of children in education is to make a long step in the direction of their education, to say nothing of the humane aspects of the achievement. To too many children the district school has been undergone under the old conditions the happy school days were those of truancy or feigned illness. Lessons were looked upon by many a boy as fearsomely as castor oil and rhubarb. In many cases the lad's preference was for a seven-day old-fashioned dosing with home remedies rather than the day's routine in school. If he took a red apple as a gift to the teacher it was for purposes of bribery alone. The teacher was his natural enemy; the lessons an obedience affliction at the hands of unnatural parents. His ambition was to escape the higher education by eating plenty and growing large enough to "lick" any one who should attempt to coerce him when the period for choice between college and a business career without a finished education should arrive. To the dull drudgery of old-fashioned schools many refusals to take a good education are due.—Courier-Journal.

LIGHTING THE COAST LINE

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Along 46,828 miles of coastline and river channels, the United States lighthouse service maintains 14,198 lights and fog signals for the aid of navigation. There are enough of these to place one every two miles around the equator, and 6,562 men are employed in tending them. Yet this service is constantly growing, and has much work before it in the safeguarding of dangerous shoals and headlands. During the past year alone, there was an increase of 677 in the number of aids to navigation maintained by the service.

* * *

There are few branches of the government service which offer a wider field for mechanical ingenuity, or where practicable labor-saving devices are more valuable than in the lighthouse service. If a signal or light can be made to operate reliably without a tender, either all or part of the time, the greatest expense in its maintenance is eliminated. Experiments with automatic aids to navigation are constantly being carried on, and some very interesting ones have been made within the past year. One of these is a self-firing gas gun, which will continue to discharge at regular intervals as long as the supply of acetylene gas, by which it is operated, lasts. Such signals have been in use along the coast of the British Isles for some years, and one of them was installed by the United States service as an experiment. It was found to be reliable in operation, but the short, sharp noise of an explosion was not considered an adequate fog warning by American seamen, because it is not of sufficient duration to enable them to determine the direction from which it comes. Naturally, a sound of vague location in a fog is worse than silence.

On the Great Lakes experiments are being made with unwatched acetylene lights, which will be left by the keepers after the regular navigation season is over to furnish aid to belated mariners.

* * *

Another labor-saving device recently put into use is a thermostat alarm, by which the keeper is automatically warned when his light burns either too high or too low, the variation in the heat operating the alarm.

* * *

Several classes of aids to navigation are maintained by the service. The first-class, light and fog signal stations, are located upon all of the more prominent and dangerous points along the coastline. The burden which is placed upon the nations in safeguarding marine commerce is shown by the fact that a well-lighted coast must have its lights close enough together so that a vessel may have one in sight all of the time in clear weather.

The smaller lights mark harbor entrances, river channels and minor dangers. New York harbor and its entrance is protected by 268 aids to navigation, including shore lights, light vessels and lighted buoys.

* * *

The lighting of the world's coastlines is a task which will never be complete, for the action of tides and currents constantly changes the problem, as do also variations in the volume of commerce.

The construction of a lighthouse gives play for both engineering and architectural skill. In order to be visible from the deck of a vessel twenty nautical miles away, a light must be two hundred feet above the level of the sea, as the curvature of the earth's surface would otherwise conceal it. At the same time, the lighthouse must often be placed upon a tiny island or a barren cliff where it will be pounded by the surf and buffeted by the wind. Strength and simplicity of construction, combined with commanding position, give many of the lighthouses striking beauty.

* * *

Stannard Rock light, which marks the most dangerous reef in Lake Superior, is farther from shore than any other American light, being twenty-four nautical miles out, and situated in eleven feet of water. Spectacle Reef lighthouse in Lake Huron is ten miles from shore, and stands in water ten feet deep. Both of these remarkable towers were built by constructing a coffer dam, pumping out the water, leveling off to bed rock, and building the lighthouse of solid stone upon that.

Perhaps the most daringly perched lighthouse in the world is that on Tillamook Rock south of the Columbia river and about one mile from shore. Landing on the rock was so difficult that a man was lost in the attempt. The top of the rock had to be blasted off in order to make room for the lighthouse, which, when finally completed after great difficulty, stood 136 feet above the level of high water. Despite this fact, the keepers reported that in a great storm in 1887, the seas broke over the top of the building. The windows were smashed, the light put out, and a part of the rock torn away; but the tower stood.

* * *

On the Florida Keys, pyramidal iron towers are used, the highest of which is the one at Sombrero Key, which lifts its light 142 feet above the water. The keeper's quarters are hung on the iron framework, and are 37 feet above the water.

* * *

Being keeper of a lighthouse must be ranked as a hazardous occupation. The danger of fire from the great lights is constant; the sea at times undermines the towers; and lighthouses and light ships are run down by vessels. In winter nearly all of the lighthouses in the Great Lakes are locked in ice, and the frozen spray often obscures the lights. In other places the constant bite of the wind-driven sand does considerable damage. Migratory birds are another source of risk, for thousands of them are attracted by the lights and dash themselves to death against the towers, occasionally breaking windows and lights. Wild ducks have been known to fly through the lantern at Cape Charles, Va., and fall to the floor dead.

* * *

Despite the fact that it is a dangerous and lonely life, and the rewards not by any means large, the lighthouse service attracts a splendid class of seamen, and the annals of the service are full records of bravery and faithfulness. One keeper died a few years ago at the age of ninety-three, after having tended his light for 52 years. The keeper of the light at Cape Sarichef, Alaska, obtained his first leave of absence after three years of service. A keeper on the Columbia river in Oregon has taken only two days of leave, in twenty-three years, one of these holidays having been for the purpose of getting married.

* * *

There have been a number of woman light keepers in the service. One of these, who tended the light at Angel Island in San Francisco Bay, kept her bell ringing by hand for over twenty hours, during a heavy fog, when the machinery had been disabled by a storm. Ida Lewis was a widely known woman light tender, who died a few years ago, having lived for fifty-seven years at Lime Rock lighthouse in Newport harbor, to which post her father was appointed when she was twelve years old. She saved a number of people from drowning.

The unavoidable dangers of living in a lighthouse are great enough to daunt many men, but the hardy seamen who make up the personnel of the service undergo even greater personal gratification in attempting to rescue persons. Every year wrecks occur on the dangerous points where the lighthouses are located, and every year a long list of heroic actions are briefly set down in the records of the service, which here and there an instance where a lighthouse keeper has lost his life in the effort to save some one.

* * *

In December, 1911, the steamer Santa Rosa went ashore near Point Arguello light station on the coast of California, and W. A. Henderson, the keeper, learned of her presence. A heavy surf was running, and the steamer was being pounded to pieces. Henderson took his own assistant, and with a number of volunteers, succeeded in saving all of the crew, despite the fact that the Santa Rosa broke in two before they could get all of the members off.

* * *

One hundred and twenty-four instances of the saving of life or property by the bravery of members of the lighthouse service have been recorded within the past fiscal year. Here are some of the feats, chosen at random:

Chester E. Morris, the second officer on a tender, dived ten feet under water from the deck of his vessel to cut a line that had fouled the propeller, and he was seriously injured. Wilbur L. Cox, keeper of a Massachusetts station, rescued a man who was clinging to the rigging of an overturned boat, and also brought ashore the body of another man, drowned in the same accident. Edward W. Long, a Delaware light keeper, rescued three young ladies adrift in a rowboat three miles from his station. E. L. Thomas, of Tangier Sound Light, Virginia, nearly lost his life in an attempt to save that of his assistant, George R. Smith, and his assistant, Neil Welsh the keeper of Galveston, Tex., rescued a man from a stranded sloop; saved most of the cargo, and when the weather had moderated, got the sloop off the reef and into deep water.

CACTUS

By DR. FRANK CRANE.
(Copyright, 1915, by Frank Crane.)

On the other side of the Atlantic they are engaged on a gigantic scale in the business of destruction. They are battering down houses it took years to build. They are trampling crops, looting stores, and butchering men.

Brilliantly to the contrary, out in California they are in the magnificent beginnings of what is perhaps the most constructive and beautiful undertaken for the creation of real wealth. For there they are starting upon the cultivation of THE EDIBLE CACTUS.

Since the first white men crossed the plains of the great American desert the luxurious growth of the spiny, useless cactus, on land where scarcely anything else would grow, has been marked.

The escape of steam from kettles and pots was dumbly noticed—until James Watt came and, learning how to harness it transformed civilization. So trains of travelers wondered stupidly why the Creator had made so much of this vegetable which no animal would eat until Luther Burbank arrived and produced the spineless cactus.

This bids fair to bring more wealth to the human race than if a mountain of gold, richer than that at Leadville, had been found.

"After the spines are bred out of the desert cactus," said Burbank, "it produces a better cattle food than alfalfa.

The farmer takes the virgin desert soil, once deemed good for nothing. He plants his slabs, as the thick leaves of the plant are called, and nature does the rest. She needs no irrigation, as the scant rainfall is all that is requisite. The land requires no fertilizing, as it is already abounding in cactus-food.

Cactus slabs will keep for six months and can be handled easily as coal.

Most of the crops are now raised for nursery stock; that is, to furnish slabs for planting. The business is just getting under way.

Healthy cactus of the thornless variety will multiply itself fifteen times the first year. It pays. At present the demand is such that slabs of the better kind are often sold for $1.50 apiece.

All sorts of domestic animals, cows, pigs, goats and chickens, love the plant and thrive on it. Cactus at $5 a ton is cheaper than alfalfa at $8.

During the twenty-four hours of a hot day it is said that a crop of cactus will increase a ton. Multiply that by thousands of acres and 365 days, and the result is staggering.

The tomb of a warrior who slays hordes of his fellows is an object of national pride. How much more glory should be given to the man who has added invaluable wealth to the world by his constructive labors!

SPEECH BY YOUNG GIRL WINS EDUCATION BOARD

Says City Can Save Money in Jails by Improving Social Conditions

Miss Elise Stokes, a nineteen-year-old student from the Atlanta Normal school, advised the city fathers of Atlanta to "spend more money on social work and they would have to spend less on jails and stockades and reformatories," in a speech before the board of education Thursday afternoon.

Miss Stokes, with two other students from the school, Miss Marjorie Clegg and Miss Genevive Capps, appeared before the board with Miss May Postell, principal of the normal school, to urge an appropriation for improvements at Glenn Street school, where the normal girls already have been doing social settlement work.

The three girls outlined the proposed improvements in speeches which W. H. Terrell, a member of the board, declared "the three best I ever heard in my life." Mr. Terrell offered to be one of five men to give $10 apiece out of their own pockets for Glenn Street school, but the board readily granted the appropriation of $50 requested by the normal delegation.

The board went on record as favoring domestic science and industrial training in the public schools when it approved the report submitted by Mrs. Spencer R. Atkinson, chairman of the educational committee of the Atlanta Woman's club.

This report recommended that the girls in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades of the public schools be taught domestic science and that the boys of those grades be taught shop work, in connection with their other studies. It further advised the employment of special teachers in these subjects, who shall arrange the details of the courses. The report went at length into arguments favoring domestic science in the schools, and offered counter arguments to objections voiced from time to time against it.

Without a dissenting voice the board approved the report, but explained that it could do nothing toward installing domestic science in the schools on account of lack of funds.

Mrs. Atkinson then told the board it was the plan of the woman's club to go before city council and get an appropriation for these changes in the school curricula.

Dear Sirs:

On Mch. 11, 1914, less than a year ago, I closed my account with your Bank by withdrawing $1201.85 from your Savings Department. You were very kind and let me have this money without my book, for, which I am sorry, as the man who was with me caused me to make a bad investment; rather the "Land" that he sold me proved to be a "Lake" in the State of Florida. . . . Will you please give me the name of the party to whom I made this "draft" payable.

Birthday Of Mrs. Lowry is Celebrated

The dinner party given by Dr. and Mrs. Bates Block Thursday evening was a bright close to the birthday anniversary of their aunt, Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, in whose honor the beautiful party was planned.

The table was graced with a silver filigree basket filled with yellow-centered daisies fringed with clusters of pale blue forget-me-nots. Individual flower holders filled with the combination blossoms were placed about the table and the lighted tapers burned under yellow silk shades.

Mrs. Lowry wore the gown of white and gold brocade made for the occasion of her golden wedding, and Mrs. Block was becomingly gowned in gray charmeuse, with touches of yellow.

Covers were laid for Colonel and Mrs. Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy, Miss Isma Dooly, Mr. Brooks Morgan and Dr. and Mrs. Block.

Bridge Party for Miss Horine

A pretty compliment to Miss Mai DeGive Horine was the bridge party at which Miss Marion Vaughan was hostess Thursday afternoon, at her home on East Fourteenth street.

The decorations of the living room and reception hall where the game was played were of narcissi and palms.

The guest prize was French novelty candle shades, the first prize, slippers for the boudoir, was won by Miss Elizabeth Boyd and the consolation prize, a Dresden powder puff was cut by Miss Marie Dinkins.

Miss Horine was attractively gowned in a taupe shaded velvet rug trimmed and Miss Vaughan wore kings blue velvet combined with chiffon of the same shade.

To Miss Hazen

Miss Mildred Hazen, of Orange, N. J., is being delightfully entertained as the guest of Miss Mercer McCarty, and several affairs are being planned for next week in her honor.

Miss Helen Stewart Jones will be hostess at a matinee party Tuesday at the Atlanta theater, followed by a Dutch supper at her home in Inman Park. After the matinee the party will be joined by an equal number of young men for the supper, and later dancing will be enjoyed.

Miss Helen McCarty will be hostess at luncheon Wednesday, February 3, at her home on Piedmont avenue, and twelve of the debutantes will be invited to meet Miss Hazen. The same evening Mrs. Edward Durant will give a dancing party at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue, at which her guest, Miss Lillian Rucknor Carter, of Washington, D. C., will share honors with Miss Hazen.

Sponsors for Basketball Game

The basketball game between the Atlanta Athletic club and the Auburn five, will be an interesting event of Saturday evening at the Athletic club following informal dancing.

Miss Alline Fielder will be sponsor for the Athletic club, and Miss Helen Jones has been chosen as sponsor by the Auburn team.

Spend-the-Day Party

Mrs. Hobart A. Rogers entertained a spend-the-day party on Thursday at her home at East Lake in honor of Mrs. J. G. Barentine, of Wilmington, N. C., who is the guest of Mrs. H. R. Bates.

Among those present were Mrs. Arch H. MacLachlan, Mrs. A. J. Lloyd, Mrs. John S. Barnes, Mrs. J. W. Gibson, Mrs. Dwight Carson and Mrs. H. R. Bates. Mrs. Barentine will be the honor guest at several other parties during her stay.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

If wits be dull or wits be slow
Jack Frost knows just what to do,
To sharpen them and quicken them,
And liven up your wits for you.

Anyway that is what all the little meadow people and forest folk who do not sleep all winter or go away down south say. And they ought to know. Yes, sir, they ought to know. That is why they do things in winter that they never would think of doing in summer. That is why Reddy Fox sometimes becomes very bold, and Sammy Jay actually dares to fly down into Farmer Brown's dooryard and help himself to food right under the very bills of the birdies.

So it was that when rough Brother North Wind finally left the snow-covered Green Meadows and Green Forest to Jack Frost, there was a great hurrying about by everybody to get their stomachs full once more. Now those who, like Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, had stored up food were not so badly off as those who had no food at all stored. To be sure, Happy Jack had hidden nuts under leaves on the ground, and now these were covered with snow and hard to find. But by searching he found one here and there. Johnny Meadow Mouse and Whitefoot the Wood Mouse had stores of seeds where they could get at them without much trouble, and they soon were skipping about on the snow, really enjoying the cold weather. But all the time they had to keep their wits about them and watch out more sharply than ever because of so many hungry folks watching for them.

But while it was easy for these thrifty little people to get enough to eat a lot of their neighbors were very, very hungry, and because they were hungry they were also cold. Peter Rabbit and little Mrs. Peter could find very little to eat but the bark of young trees, and they had to travel around quite a lot to find enough of even this coarse fare to fill their stomachs. Mrs. Grouse was quite as badly off. Of course, with all that snow on the ground, she could find no seeds or other food there, and had to live on buds from the trees, not at all to her liking, but better than nothing.

By working very hard and patiently Drummer the Woodpecker and Tommy Tit the Chickadee managed to find enough insect eggs and grubs under the bark of trees to keep going, but it was the hardest kind of hard work because a great many of the trees were covered with ice which they could not get through. Their bills became very much worn with the hard work. Still they did not complain. No one ever complains of things like that on the Green Meadows or in the Green Forest. They just do the best they can knowing that Old Mother Nature is doing the best she can, which is a very wise way of looking at matters.

As for Granny and Reddy Fox, Old Man Coyote, Hooty the Owl, and Roughleg the Hawk, they could not live on bark or buds or seeds or grubs, and so they had to depend on catching unwary little people smaller than themselves, and this meant hunting every minute that they were awake. They grew very fierce and bold, and their wits grew very sharp, indeed. They had need to be sharp in order to get enough to eat. They never did really get enough—not enough to feel that they had enough. They were always hungry. But they got enough to keep them from day to day.

Oh, those were hard times, hard times indeed on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest, and all because of rough Brother North Wind and Jack Frost. And yet as Peter Rabbit said to Mrs. Peter:

"It might be worse. Yes, indeed it might be worse. I guess Old Mother Nature knows what she is about. If we had things too easy we wouldn't live long. No, we wouldn't live long. In these hard times we have to use all our wits to get enough to eat and to keep out of the stomachs of Reddy Fox and the others, and they have to use all their wits to try to catch us, so it makes us all just so much smarter."

Which shows that Peter is wiser than some people who always complain.

Cottolene

Cottolene took the lead as a cooking fat over a quarter of a century ago. It was in the van of the great movement for the betterment of household service and for the improvement of food products.

There is no secret about Cottolene. The world has known it for more than a generation. It is an exact combination of fresh, pure, sweet, ultra-refined cotton seed oil whose grade is so high that it is not listed on the market, with beef stearine from fresh, pure leaf beef suet.

It is this combination which gives Cottolene the splendid qualities, for shortening, frying and cake-making which produce results that delight everybody.

Hundreds of Well Gloved Hands Speak Up for These

Real French Lambskins at $1

LIKE other stores, we have always had more or less complaint on the gloves we sold at $1. Finally, two years ago, we went abroad and had one of the leading makers at Grenoble, France, manufacture a glove according to our say-so.

—We specified French lambskin—each skin to be selected and cut from the center of the hide. Each skin, moreover, to grade up for pliancy and weight.

—We've sold these gloves now for two years; we don't average a complaint to a hundred pairs. Without question they're the best glove shown in the South at $1.

—Real French lambskin, mind you, not German nor Schmarchen. Leading colors, black, white and black or white with contrasting stitching. In the latter one style has three rows of heavy cord on back; the other style has narrow stitching on back and around each finger.

Sand, Putty and Other New Shades

have also come from France in our Rosalind glove at $1.50. Real French kid; superbly fashioned and finished.

U. D. C. Holds Interesting Meeting

The presence of Mrs. W. D. Lamar, of Macon, state U. D. C. president, afforded great pleasure to the members of the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, which met Thursday afternoon, at the Woman's club with Mrs. Williams McCarthy, presiding. One of the most interesting features of the meeting was Mrs. Lamar's talk of the work of the Daughters of the Confederacy in its many fields of endeavor.

Messages of love and appreciation from the beloved registrar, Mrs. Dalton Mitchell, were delivered by Mrs. A. O. Woodward. Mrs. McCarthy and Mrs. Laura Weddell. Mrs. Rebecca Nesbit was present, receiving recognition from the chair. Mrs. Wolf, founder of the Children of the Confederacy, made an earnest appeal to the daughters to assist in compiling, preserving and circulating correct history of the south and her rights to secede.

Mrs. W. S. Yeates, chairman of programs, introduced Mrs. Wren McConnell, who gave two dialect selections and a poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Mrs. Nellie Peters Black spoke in the interest of the memorial hall at Athens.

Miss Daisy LeCraw rendered several vocal selections following which an informal reception was held in honor of Mrs. Lamar.

The punch bowl was gracefully presided over by Mrs. Hazard and Mrs. J. C. Henderson.

USING SOAP SPOILS THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), is cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—(Advt.)

CALOMEL SALIVATES

Calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work. Calomel is a nasty, dangerous chemical. To liven your sluggish liver and bowels when constipated, headachy, bilious, just get a 10-cent box of harmless Cascarets. They work while you sleep, don't gripe, sicken or salivate. (Advt.)

Browning Signs Contract for the Coming Season

Fourteen Players Have Now Come to Terms—Hack Eibel on Visit to Relatives in New York—Additional Recruits From Browns Still Unknown

Another signed contract for the 1915 season was received at baseball headquarters Thursday afternoon, bringing the total of players signed for the coming season up to fourteen. The latest parchment received was that of Pitcher Frank Browning. Browning has been hibernating in Atlanta this winter. Frank has been sticking pretty close to his own fireside, but ventured out long enough Thursday to send in his contract.

The 1915 season ought to be a good one for Browning. Last year he had an average season, winning better than 50 per cent of his games. However, for a greater portion of last year he was not used in regular turn. There is little doubt but that he will do better work if used regularly. Frank is not a relief pitcher. He depends on his control and a long noodle to get by, not being possessed of any amazing speed. For this reason he is not the man to send in to check a batting rally by the opposition, unless said opposition should happen to be walloping speed at the time. But if Browning is used in regular turn next season he ought to prove a valuable asset for the Crackers.

Hack Eibel, who has been spending the winter in Atlanta, in the capacity of manager of the Crystal Billiard parlors, has returned to New York for a short visit to his relatives. He expects to spend a week or so in Brooklyn, and will then return to take up his work with his present connection until the spring training season opens up.

This is the first winter in three years that Eibel has not played ball. For the past two years, he has played in Porto Rico. He is a bit curious to learn whether his layoff from the diamond game will prove a benefit to his playing during the regular season, or whether it will hurt his playing. Hack was the only member of the Crackers who played in every game last year. He has not missed a game for two years, and unless misfortune overtakes him, he does not expect to be missing from the line-up on any occasion next summer.

Referring to Eibel's playing in Porto Rico, Hack recently tipped off a bit of gossip concerning his experiences there, flown on the island they call Black "Stonewall," or the equivalent in Spanish. What's the idea of the cognomen, was asked. "Oh, I never let any of 'em get by me," was the reply.

Manager Billy Smith is still a bit in the dark as to what additional players he will get from the St. Louis Browns, besides those announced a few days since. Bill expects to land another infielder and a couple of outfielders. Abie Hollander is the most promising prospect for the former job, while Yale Sloan, Ernest Walker, or Clemens, who led the Texas league in hitting last season are the three who are considered possibilities for the outfielding choices. Either of these should make Bill acceptable men.

Zim Defendant In Divorce Suit

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Heinie Zimmerman, premier third baseman of the Chicago Cubs and umpire baiter, has been made the defendant in a suit for separation began by Mrs. Helen Charles R. Zimmerman of the Bronx, it was learned today. Cruelty, abusive language and refusal to support are the grounds alleged by the nineteen-year-old wife of the baseball star in her papers, which arrived at the Bronx county court house too late to be filed yesterday afternoon.

Although the wife alleges he (Zim) is paid $7,500 a year by the Chicago National league club for his services at the third sack and in shepherding the goats of umpires, she alleges he has not sent any money to support her in some time, excepting a $5 gold piece which he sent as a Christmas present for their infant daughter, Margaret. Mrs. Zimmerman said her husband is reputed to be a "good spender." They were married May 1, 1914.

Mrs. Zimmerman asks $200 a month alimony and $500 allowance for counsel fees. She said she had known Zimmerman since she was a child, and had hoped for a happy married life, but the romance had been shattered, she declared.

"This 'licking' habit has got to stop," she said at her home today. "We have got to separate before he murders me. He likes the ladies and I cannot stand it any longer."

The suit will be heard before Justice John Brady in the supreme court, Bronx county, on February 2.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

Ever and anon, if not oftener, we receive complaints from correspondents because we haven't answered certain queries or replied to letters. We are forced to admit the blighting impeachment, and with a feeling somewhat akin to shame. Every query should be answered, and every letter replied to. But in some way we never seem to catch up or we lose the letters or some other untoward event intervenes.

ENTERING THE ALIBI.

On the other hand, as has been said before, being remotely connected with the sporting industry at large, we have our alibi. For example, when a certain missive today, we could at once inhale at once the advance fragrance of the succulent statistic with attached visions of an afternoon totally destroyed. But we dug on in and we hereby offer the enclosed as a sample explaining our dereliction.

AS FOLLOWS:

Dear Sir—

Can you please tell a young fan who plays some baseball also about how many chances big league bill players accept before they make an error on an average? I mean about how many put-outs and assists will they have to each error and oblige, gratefully, A SCHOOL BOY FAN.

At first glance nothing could sound simpler. And being anxious to oblige I'll start in to answer at once saying, "About one error to every"—and then you suddenly pull up. About one error to every what? Offhand you might say about one error to every ten chances, for a guess. But it might be one to eight or one to seventeen. And, not desiring to indulge in any false steer or inaugurate any inaccuracy, there is one of two things to do—(1.) Toss the epistle aside without further worry, or (2.) Dig deep enough into the sandy-soiled dope to round up the answer.

ZIP—GOES AN AFTERNOON.

We decided to try out Number Two by way of variety. And the only way to respond to the simple query above was to gather in the records and discover how many put-outs, assists and errors had been made in the 2,500 big league games played last fall.

All we had to do was to keep on adding until we discovered that in the National league's 1,250 games there had been 33,448 put-outs plus 16,235 assists. The total chances accepted therefore were 49,683. And against this there were 2,146 errors. All of which produces the information that in the National league 23.1 chances are accepted before the earnest athlete, on an average, blows one or introduces the well-known boot.

To extend the idea, there were 51,156 chances accepted in the American league, against 2,148 misplays—which gives the A. L. an average of 23.8 chances accepted against one fizzle or muff. All of which is direct proof of the great skill employed by the profession at large, as the acceptance of 23 out of 24 chances under fire is sufficient proof of both skill and nerve employed by those who wear the spike and glove.

In passing, we hope School Boy Fan can make sterling use of this information. For at the finish of the dope excavation there wasn't enough left of a perfectly good afternoon to use for rolling a cigarette.

WITHOUT MUCH THOUGHT NEEDED.

Some day a golfer is going to write in to know about how many putts an average golfer requires for each green, and taking our own experience we are going to say from 3 to 5 and let it go at that.

R. S.—Yes, we are neutral. We don't care how much indemnity Germany is forced to pay Belgium so long as it's enough.

AS FOR QUERIES.

Here's one that arrived a short while ago: Sir—To settle a bet please answer this: "Didn't Rube Marquard pitch on a cloudy afternoon oftener than Babe Adams did last season?" It would take more than an afternoon off to settle that proposition. It would come nearer taking an entire season.

We appreciate queries calling for subtle opinions on breezy topics and we also appreciate subtle opinions advanced for the cause in general—but there are times when the former can be too subtle.

WITH McGRAW IN CUBA.

(By our Staff Correspondent.)

Havana Country Club, Cuba, Jan. 22.—The United States may not be prepared for any foreign invasion, but Cuba is now ready to meet the Allies and Germany combined in case any rough stuff is planned by a hostile force.

John J. McGraw played his first round over the course of the Havana Country club today, and as a result Cuba now has one of the finest lines of trenches ever established.

For over three hours dirt and rock flew in all directions from McGraw's trusty mashie, while the sulphuric haze which hangs over the newly formed trenches is poisonous in its density. On one occasion, using a heavy niblick, McGraw laid the ball, a piece of sod eight feet square and a huge bowlder all dead to the hole. The official report shows that he went out in 87 and came back in a taxicab. His next round will be played as soon as the course can be replroughed, seeded and rolled.

P. S.—The Giant manager evidently didn't care for the way the course was trapped. He tore up and wrecked all the old bunkers and dug new traps from the tee to the green.

P. S. again.—When interviewed at the fifth hole as to what he thought of golf, having just emerged from a bunker, McGraw gave out the follow: "G——, h—— d—— xzy @ &—|()*@&."

THE PRELIM'S POINT OF ORDER.

"Keep on hittin'"—me manager yells
"And knock 'im dead wid' a kick;
Mix it up like I tipped you, kid,
And then come tru wid' a brick;
Swap 'im a punch for a punch, you dub,
And de rest is a tied-up cinch."
But it ain't HIS jaw-bone makin' de swap,
And dat's why I fell in a clinch.

"Keep on goin'"—me manager yells,
"Dis ain't no opium den;
Climb on your pins when he counts to eight
And fall in a clinch again;
Five—six—seven—NOW, after him, kid,
And make 'im look like a pup"—
But it ain't HIS gobboon drippin' de red,
And dat's why I didn't get up.

Before making any rowing predictions, Yale wants to know whether Harvard intends to use her first crew or her second crew this season. England feels the same way about it.

There may not be much international sport this season, but we have an idea there is going to be a lot of home-grown fuzz, with the flying fur left deep enough to suit.

Dobbs Will Fill Utility Role For Pelicans

New Orleans Manager Expects to Do Active Work Next Season—Cut in Salary Limit Responsible for This Decision

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29.—Baseball fans who follow the fortunes of the Pelicans this season will see Manager Johnnie Dobbs doing some real work, chasing flies and swatting the ball in earnest; to say nothing of sliding for home and running the paths. For Johnnie is going to be the utility man of the Pelicans this season.

This surprising state of affairs, the result of the decision of the powers to cut down the salary and player lists, came to light yesterday, when, in speaking of the training season, Johnnie remarked: "I'll have to get in and train with the rest of them this year for I expect to be called upon at any time."

Johnnie expects to have a great outfield in Burns, Sylvester, Hendrix and possibly Edmondson to select from. This field will probably be narrowed down to three and then, if any one of the three should be incapacitated, it will be "Johnnie on the Job."

The club is sure of securing the services of all the men mentioned with the possible exception of Edmondson. "Little Eddie," played in the Texas league last season and made good with a vengeance, fielding splendidly and hitting the ball hard beside making fine marks in base running and sliding. At the end of the season he returned to the New Orleans club and afterward was sent to Cleveland which must secure waivers on him before he may be returned to New Orleans, it is thought that there will be no trouble about this.

It is very probable that Manager Dobbs will find plenty of occasions to exercise his talent as a regular ball player during the season and will start with the rest of the Pelican squad to get in shape.

He always was noted as a splendid hitter and a good fielder and it may yet transpire that the fans that are expected to fill Heiney's big new stand at Pelican park will be heard calling to John to "Hit her out old kid—steam 'em up," before the end of the coming series in Prexy Kavanaugh's little old circuit.

Baron Hurler Signs for 1915

BIRMINGHAM, Jan. 29.—The signed contract of Omar Hardgrove, baron pitcher, arrived at local baseball headquarters Wednesday.

The announcement that Hardy has signed will cause a little surprise in the camp of loyal fandom as it had been rumored that he had a Fed offer and would jump to the outlaws if not given a healthy raise in salary.

In fact he stated this emphatically in a letter to a local fan a few weeks ago. Now he comes with the statement that he is anxious to come south and get in harness.

Grimes, Hardgrove, Clarke, Carroll and Mamaux have signed and Moley states that everything is fixed with Roy Elham and Clyde McBride. This makes seven of the boys in the fold with nineteen to be heard from.

Corry and Carman Set Pace in Grind

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Frank Corry, Australia, and Clarence Carman, Jamaica, were in the lead in the six-day bicycle race at 8 o'clock this morning, the ninth hour of the race. They had covered 211 miles 7 laps, a total of 2,325 laps, one lap behind the record for the first nine hours of a six-day race.

Racing in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 29.—Horse racing will be revived in St. Louis and Kansas City if a bill introduced in the house of representatives Thursday becomes a law. The measure would legalize the pari mutual system of betting.

Mandot vs. Brown

SUPERIOR, Wis., Jan. 29.—Joe Mandot, of New Orleans, and Hal Brown, of Minnesota, have been matched to meet in a ten-round bout at Superior, Feb 24. Terms have been agreed on and articles forwarded to the principals. They will weigh 133 pounds at 3 o'clock the afternoon of the contest.

Gould and Potter Win

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—Jay Gould, New York, and Wilson Potter, Philadelphia, defeated George H. Brooke and R. K. Cassatt, Philadelphia, 6 to 0 games to none Thursday in the first round of the national doubles racquet championship tournament. The scores were: 15-11, 15-12,17-10, 15-12.

Joe Benz, the Batesville butcher boy, is beginning to think of putting away his cleaver, to dust off his baseball uniform. He will be one of early arrivals in the Sox camp, according to late advices.

Raling The News

BY INNIS BROWN

The report that the Federal league is at present making a determined effort to launch a minor league to be composed of several New England towns brings up a rather interesting feature in connection with the suit recently filed against organized baseball and the national commission. The point is just what connection will such a league have with the Federal league.

In other words, supposing a young player is taken on by a Federal league club, and fails to show enough class to stick. What will be the terms and conditions under which such a player will be turned over to the junior Federals? In their suit, the Feds have made the point that the national commission controls ball players body and soul, when once they sign a contract to play with a club in organized ranks. Now if a club in the Federal league sends a player to their proposed minor league, will it have anything to say about the conditions on which he goes, or will he simply be released with the understanding that said small league will provide a place for him?

The presumption is, of course, that the Federals are trying to frame things so that a player who decides to try out with them will have some outlook in case he fails to make good, of going back to a smaller circuit, where competition is not so keen. Yet there are players now in organized ranks, who have played with the Feds, and were later let out. Of course these players never jumped any contracts with clubs in organized ranks. Last season Newark had a player, one Witterstaetter, called Witter for short, who formerly played with the Indianapolis Feds. He has been persistently announced that the Yanks were after Benny Kauff, a Federal league player, there are doubtless other similar cases. A little explanation from the Feds as to what connection they will maintain with their proposed minor league would, therefore, be enlightening.

Davy Fultz, president of the Ball Players' fraternity, is out with a boost for Jerry Herrmann. "Herrmann has always handed us fair decisions," quoth David, "and I would rather a thousand times do business with him than with Ban Johnson." This may not be such a keen compliment to Garry after all. But that we know a few members of the fraternity, one or two at least, who can't subscribe to the sentiments voiced by their president.

Clark Griffith announces his roster of eleven pitchers, three catchers, eight outfielders and six infielders. Wally Smith is not included among the latter.

Charlie Comiskey sprung a surprise on the baseball public generally when he announced the appointment of Clarence Rowland as manager of the White Sox. Princeton sprung another unexpected trick in selecting "Speedy" Rush to coach the Nassau eleven. Few football fans at large know much of Rush's record. Here is one fact of interest that may help to clear up the choice. Rush won nine football championships in twelve years, while coaching the University school, of Cleveland. Looks like a pretty fair recommendation.

A mysterious stranger threw consternation into the ranks of Washington bowlers a few nights since by trimming the best home talent in each style. His name was Getz, and it was no misnomer.

A morning daily in St. Louis boastingly calls attention to the fact that it beat its contemporary in announcing that the Mound City had been favored the day before with a visit by Charles Hercules Ebbetts. The wonder is how anybody could have missed the unrestrained conversation which C. Hercules must surely have cut loose on his arrival.

Not for the sake of artistic verbiage, but rather as demonstrating the value of diversity of opinion, we should like to see just what Danny Morgan says of the Gunboat Smith-Levinsky fight in New Orleans Wednesday night, considering that regular press reports credit Smith with winning.

Among the candidates for a regular job on the Washington infield during the approaching season is a youngster by the name of Pick. Aw, go ahead and say it yourself we haven't the heart.

All the same, there was a player in the Cleveland team last season by the name of Bope. Ever hear of him before? Nope.

Concessions Given American Association Places That Circuit on Footing With Two Big Leagues

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Although the American association has been promised higher league classification and will arrange its circuit with a view of dropping one or two of the present cities, it will not invade Chicago at this time, Thomas M. Chivington, president of the association, said today. President Chivington said it was possible that the St. Paul franchise will be assigned to a larger city and that another important change was contemplated.

The national commission has agreed to grant the association the right to enter certain American or National league cities and will turn over a number of players. Edit representation on the national commission and participation in the world's championship series are "steps not yet taken" according to Chivington.

The concession first announced today by President McGill of the Indianapolis club, makes the association a major league so far as the draft is concerned. Chivington said. What other differences will make it major-league relations will be arranged by the commission, though action is not expected until after a decision in the anti-trust suit, he concluded.

Meanwhile information regarding the territory and players' transfers will be withheld, Chivington said.

Murrelle and Dixon Leading in Shoot

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 29.—Harry Murrelle, of Houston, a professional, and Harvey Dixon, of Orange, Mo., amateur, lead their respective classes in Thursday's competition of the annual Sunny South shoot. Murrelle broke 175 of the 180 targets, while Dixon scored 167 out of 180. John Livingston, of Springville, Ala., was second in the amateur classes with 165 breaks to his credit.

Club Quintet in Shape for Fray

Little is known concerning the Auburn basketball team which comes to battle the Athletic club team here today night. But regardless of the personnel of the Plainsmen this season, they are going to run into a tough assignment when they hook up with Joe Bent's entry this time. The club boys are going great guns now. Captain Willingham Smith should be in shape to resume work with the bunch tomorrow night. With him back in the lineup the club five should be in shape to put up the best game it has shown to date. Decisive victories over Vanderbilt and the Birmingham Athletic club show that the local five will prove a hard proposition for any and all comers from now on.

Balenti Ready For Active Work

Broken Leg Has Entirely Mended, and Lookout Infielder Reports That He Is in Good Shape

CHATTANOOGA, Jan. 29.—Mike Balenti, the Lookouts' Indian shortstop, in a letter to a local friend, insists that his broken leg is as good as it ever was, and that he's getting in fine shape for the opening of the training season.

Mike energetically refused to be "read off" the Chattanooga club this spring and insists that he'll "make it" in a walk. The Indian has not yet signed his contract, but is not holding out, being decidedly anxious to return to the Lookout fold.

While the regular line-up of the Lookout infield seems to be pretty well figured out, it is by no means certain that Balenti will not find a place there, if he doesn't, the utility role is still open. Balenti is a splendid sort of a chap to have on a ball club, being of good habits, steady and well liked by all his associates.

Coach Will McAllester, of the City High school squad, is one who believes that the broken leg will not handicap the Indian—that, like Johnny Evers and many others, he will be able to come back at his old speed in spite of his injury.

"I watched Balenti working with his football squad last fall," said McAllester last night. "Several times he scrimmaged with them. Of course, he favors his injured leg as all players do, but in a pinch it was there with full strength. I believe his leg is completely recovered, and he has many more years of ball playing left in his system, and real ball playing, too."

RENEWED HEAVY SELLING CAUSED BREAK IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 6 to 10 Points Down From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Relatively firm Liverpool cables encouraged a renewal of local and western buying which developed in great force yesterday, and the opening to-day was steady at an advance of 3 to 6 points. There appeared to be very little cotton for sale at the start and active months sold 6 or 7 points above yesterday's closing during early trading, but there was some scattered realizing and there also appeared to be a little southern selling which checked the advance and caused slight reactions later in the first hour.

Reports of further decrease in spot demand in Montgomery and an easier turn in New Orleans were followed by increased offerings here during the middle of the morning, and after having shown a net gain of from 7 to 9 points prices reacted to within a point or two of yesterday's closing. Trading became quiet and the market showed little feature around midday.

Weakness in the stock market was accompanied by heavy Wall street selling during the early afternoon and prices broke sharply with the active months selling about 5 to 8 points net lower.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29.—Better cables than due and a moderate accumulation of buying orders overnight gave cotton a good tone at the opening call today and put prices on the most active months 7 points over yesterday's close. There was little short selling and offerings from all sources were small.

The market held steady throughout the morning, some of the orders coming from Germany. At noon prices were 7 to 9 points higher.

The market broke sharply in the early afternoon on belated reports of the sinking of the Lusitania. At 1:30 prices were 8 to 10 points under yesterday's close.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS

Financial Bulletin: Decrease in Egyptian receipts is due to a shortage as a result of the Turkish campaign. There is no change in the world's statistical position.

Neuman Bros & Co.: On the whole we have not worked over the belief that the ultimate outgoing swings will be coincident with rising prices and, therefore, advocating purchases to use for the shorts during such as was seen yesterday. We look for higher prices.

Hayden, Stone & Co.: The Lever law goes into effect next month and as this will practically make exportations impossible, it may easily result in a bone fide demand in this market.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—As the most considerable doubt whether present prices will force any material reduction in the crop and the first week of the season have been provided for by consumption, activity in the cotton markets has been delayed and restricted, which accounts for the sharp turns such as was seen yesterday. We look for higher prices.

Weak and covering by the smaller shorts and wash trading on speculative buying orders by all talkings and favorable export statistics failed to stimulate any respectable buying. The opening futures this morning 5 to 6 points higher, spots 8 higher, sales 6,000.

The New York dry goods report speaks of decreased activity.

An important fact is that weather conditions over the belt continue good. Rains have been in progress for a week or more and the indications are for continued fair weather with the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coast sections and in the western states.

Necessary extensive disturbance is approaching from the west and a change to bad weather is likely by Monday or Tuesday.

Old Liverpool, but fast the advance soon after the market opened 4 to 6 points higher to "the call." Trading is narrow. What buying there is is inspired by the desire for protection over Sunday, rather than by a genuine bullish disposition.

Private reports better selling and we look for still stronger support on better news from the Lever bill situation, also on the belief that the Egyptian cotton acreage will be decreased by the war.

The local spot market is quiet, only a moderate scattered inquiry, but quotations are likely to be fixed by factors.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET UNDER HEAVY PRESSURE

Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, New Haven, Canadian Pacific and Copper Weak

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—United States Steel common, whose minimum price was reduced from 48 to 40 after the close of yesterday's session opened today with one lot of 7,500 shares at 40¼ to 40, immediately followed by two lots aggregating 2,700 shares at 40¾. Total sales in the first fifteen minutes exceeded 20,000 shares, the high quotation being 40¾, the preferred stock declined a small fraction. Other active stocks as well as many specialties, improved over yesterday's close, there being substantial gains in leading railways and Amalgamated copper. Sugar shares were again strong. Vessel steel car lost four points.

Renewed liquidation came after midday, Canadian Pacific then yielding over 3 points from yesterday's close. New Haven fell 4¾, to 49, its minimum, and a new low record. Reading and Union Pacific were off 1 to 2 points.

Prices recorded to the lowest of the day in the final hour under heavy selling of Union Pacific and Reading.

STOCK MARKET OPINIONS

New York Commercial: The prohibition of foreign flotation in Britain will not hinder foreign purchases buying American bonds or stocks and American issues are today classed as among the most desirable in the world.

New York Commercial: Industrials are surprisingly strong in face of decline in the steel trade and evidence of checking of the steel trade is decidedly bullish, the principal feature being heavy buying of rails for several railroads.

Logan & Bryan: With the exception of some declines we seem to see further improving prospect of security prices declining materially from present level.

Unofficial Reports are to the Effect That Work Will Be Started Soon on the Connally Building, Although It Will Probably Not Be On As Large a Scae as Originally Panned. Easier Money Noted--Other Comment

Unofficial reports Friday were to the effect that work would soon be started on the Connally building at Whitehall and Alabama streets.

It is understood, however, that the original plan for a sixteen-story building will not be carried out, but that a smaller building, to cost about $300,000, will be erected.

The foundation will be so laid, however, as to permit the addition of more stories, so that eventually the original plan can be carried out.

Building has already taken a good start for next year, and real job couldn't come at a better time. Some sort of definite announcement may be forthcoming soon.

MARKET CONDITION.

Some fairly good transactions have been made lately, and should the weather be favorable this week, the outlook is unquestionably rosy. Two days of clear, sunshiny weather have already had a good effect.

The most notable development just now is easier money. Some of the insurance companies are making small loans on city property at the rate of interest, and this is bound to have a good competitive effect on individual lenders.

In regard to the present money complain now that they have difficulty in placing it. Builders are not experiencing any difficulty in getting their jobs financed to a reasonable degree.

Whereas a few weeks ago investors would not listen to propositions, now they are making inquiries and submitting offers.

Taking the situation as a whole, there is much encouragement in sight, and steady improvement has set in and a most pronounced improvement in sentiment.

LITTLE CURTAILMENT IN TROLLEY SERVICE

the petitioner for authority to revise service on route No. 20, East Point-Hapeville-College Park, be and the same is hereby granted conditionally, as hereinafter set out, and said Georgia Railway and Power company is hereby authorized to discontinue extra cars now being operated during the morning and afternoon rush hours over that portion of this route between Virginia avenue, in College Park, and the center of the city, provided said company substitutes forty-eight-seat cars for the forty-seat cars now being operated during rush hours on this route between the center of the city and College Park.

"Ordered further that the prayer of the petitioner for authority to discontinue extra cars now being operated during the morning rush hours on route No. 21, Stewart avenue, be and the same is hereby granted, and said Georgia Railway and Power company is hereby authorized to discontinue operation of said extra cars on this route during the morning rush hours; and that the prayer of the petitioner for authority to discontinue extra cars now being operated during the afternoon rush hours on this route, be and the same is hereby denied.

"Ordered further that the prayer of the petitioner with respect to changes in service on route No. 22, Soldiers' Home line, be and the same is hereby denied, with the provision that the company may, if it desires, shorten the rush hour period on this route so as to cover only about two hours during the combined morning and afternoon congestion.

"Ordered further that the Georgia Railway and Power company be and is hereby directed to file with the commission beginning with the month of January, and until the further order of the commission, monthly statements of gross passenger receipts on each route separately, and for the entire system, and like statements for the corresponding months of the year 1914, these statements to be filed with the commission as promptly as possible after the figures for the same are available.

"By order of the commission.

"C. M. CANDLER, Chairman.

"CAMPBELL WALLACE, Sec.'

COMPANY'S POSITION.

In its explanatory statement the commission points out that the street car company does not claim that the losing money on street car service, but that its petition was based upon the allegation that it is at this time supplying more facilities upon certain lines than the volume of traffic requires. The commission did not proceed on the theory that a decreased use of all the lines of the system as a whole justified less service on any particular route, but considered the traffic on each route separate and distinct from the traffic on all other routes.

The commission does not agree with the assumption of the company that the facilities furnished in 1913 were entirely adequate on every route.

In part the commission's explanatory statement follows:

"Alleging that under existing schedules on certain street car routes in the city of Atlanta and suburbs, it is now furnishing larger service and more facilities than is reasonably required by present traffic, the Georgia Railway and Power company asks that it be authorized to revise existing schedules on these routes so as to discontinue this alleged excessive service.

"Supporting the petition in a general way, the company shows that gross passenger receipts on its entire city and suburban system for the last four months of 1914, during which period the full effects of the world-wide business disturbances and depression have been felt, are considerably less than for the same periods in 1913 and 1912.

"The comparisons are as follows:

	September.	October	November.	December.	Four months.
1912	$240,175	$259,103	$228,980	$229,967	$960,038
1913	244,060	244,411	233,988	246,386	968,785
1914	235,471	254,276	211,224	232,712	933,658
Decrease 1914 under 1913	$ 8,589	$ 10,291	$ 22,764	$ 13,673	$ 65,127
Percentage of decrease	3.5	4.2	9.7	9.6	6.7
Decrease in cash fares, 1914 under 1913	$171,764	204,017	453,280	473,454	1,302,515

LOSS NOT CLAIMED.

"The company assumes that its service facilities in 1913 were adequate, and that, therefore, the considerably lesser use made of substantially the same or somewhat increased facilities in 1914 than in 1913 indicates excessive facilities at this time, and justifies the reductions in service asked. The above figures are for the entire city and suburban system; some of the individual routes show slight increases over 1913.

"It is not claimed that the company is losing money on its street car service.

"The application is based upon the allegation that the company is at this time supplying more facilities upon certain lines than the volume of traffic requires. Under the general showing made, the commission has felt that the company was entitled to a thorough inquiry as to the questions raised in its petition, and to relief from the expense of any service which is showed beyond question was in excess of the reasonable needs of the public.

"We have not proceeded upon the theory that a decreased use of all the lines of the system as a whole justified less service on any individual route. We have undertaken to ascertain service conditions, facilities and uses on each individual route, and to pass upon each without reference to other routes in the system.

"The company seems to have assumed that the excessive service alleged is in facilities operated during the 'rush hour' periods, and therefore, in a majority of the routes under investigation, seeks to lessen its 'rush hour' service by taking off the extra cars operated during these periods. A careful study of the traffic data furnished has not satisfied us that this assumption is correct. While it is entirely reasonable and wholly probable that there was during December, 1914, a smaller volume of traffic during 'rush hours' than in 1913, the commission is of the opinion, from many considerations, that this decrease has been relatively smaller than in 'non-rush hours.' Widespread business depression affects travel for pleasure and on Sundays and holidays when every one is economizing, more than it does travel necessary for people to get to their work or places of business. Besides, the abnormal weather conditions prevalent in this vicinity during practically the past three months have had material effect upon street car travel for pleasure, for shopping, on holidays and on Sundays, to a larger extent than it has on travel by persons who daily use the cars in getting to offices, stores and shops, and this notwithstanding that there are many out of employment.

FACILITIES OF 1913.

"Granting, however, that the 'rush hour' traffic is reduced under 1913, the commission is not inclined to agree with the assumption that the facilities supplied during these periods in 1913 were entirely adequate on every route. On some routes we feel sure they were not, and in making this statement the commission does not base it upon the contention that every passenger on every car operated should be furnished a seat. This contention may be sound in theory. Under street car traffic conditions as they exist daily, such a theory is frequently impossible of actual operation.

"Street car passenger travel is the most human traffic of which we have knowledge. It is the most erratic and uncertain. The average man or woman takes the first car passing. It must be packed to the platforms with human freight; another following in slight may be entirely empty, but not one in twenty of the waiting intending passengers will await the second car. The result is that operating on a two or three minute headway, or even less, one car goes packed with strap-hangers, while immediately behind it follows another with three-fourths of its seating capacity unoccupied. Again, the average person seems to prefer riding on a loaded car, to riding all by his or her lonesome' on another car equally as comfortable. Men and women are gregarious—they like to go in flocks or herds, for company's sake.

"It is in our opinion, the duty of a common carrier to provide seats, that is, reasonable accommodations, in its cars for such persons as desire them, to so far as they can reasonably anticipate and measure the volume of traffic which will offer. During certain hours of the day experience shows that there is, with fair regularity, an estimable volume of traffic. This should be provided for. But this does not mean that if an average of forty passengers customarily boards a given schedule on certain route upon which is operated a forty-seat car, that the car is then loaded to its reasonable capacity, and that when forty-one passengers begin to ride, additional facilities must be provided.

"VOLUNTARY STANDERS."

"Careful observation has shown that an appreciable percentage of regular street car patrons prefer riding on the platforms to occupying seats inside the cars. These are styled 'voluntary standers.' Again, it must be borne in mind that city street car transportation is generally for comparatively short distances. A given route, we will say, is five miles; cars are regularly operated the entire distance of the route. At an ascertained peak point, where the load is always heaviest, a forty-seat car will customarily have on board, say, forty-eight passengers. This maximum was only reached one block back. At the next block forward, the car begins to discharge its load, and within two or three blocks the load is again below the seating capacity, no one having stood for a longer distance than three or four blocks, or for a longer time than five or ten minutes. This particular schedule may have been (and observation demonstrates this), the only one at all overloaded during the whole day. Conditions of this nature arise in street car traffic when it is impossible to avoid overloading for short distances, or for short periods of time.

"Taking into consideration such conditions as above, some commissions have held that facilities are fairly reasonable where the peak point loads do not exceed 30 per cent of the seating capacity offered for a continuous period of thirty or forty minutes.

"In our opinion, an allowance of 20 per cent over the seating capacity for standees, whether voluntary or involuntary for short distances, is too generous. We are rather inclined to allow only 20 per cent on this account, to be extended not longer than thirty minutes with schedule operated on the corresponding ten minute headway. It would not be reasonable to apply this rule to only one car of travel, or even a week's, but congestion should extend over such a reasonable period as would show that it is regular and not spasmodic; that it is permanent and not temporary and due to temporary conditions.

"It would be unreasonable to require a street car carrier to provide equipment sufficient to provide a seat for every passenger on every schedule of every day of every year, and for any distance. This is not only unreasonable—it is impossible even if the public would render the absolutely necessary co-operation in distributing the loads as between the cars offering.

"Conditions on suburban lines, where as a general rule passengers ride long-er distances, require different treatment. The passenger who is forced to stand four or five miles occupies a different position than one forced to stand four or five blocks.

INFORMATION FOR PUBLIC.

"We have deemed it advisable to submit the foregoing general observations in order that the public, who sometimes grow impatient with momentary conditions or others impossible to entirely remedy, may be reminded that the carrier is only required by law to supply reasonably adequate and comfortable facilities, and that this principle of law and equity has been kept in view in reaching the conclusions announced.

"It is not the purpose of this commission, nor is it within its power, to operate the street car systems in all the cities of the state and lay out their schedules. We cannot do this in Atlanta. It is the province of the commission, leaving the details of management and operation to the company, to compel reasonably adequate and efficient service. This we have undertaken, and in this task have, generally speaking, had the willing and effective co-operation of the company. If at any time, or upon any route, there is shown to be facilities and service in excess of the reasonable needs of the public, it is just as much our duty to allow a reasonable reduction of this excess, as to require more service when it is shown to be inadequate. In the pending application we have studied conditions, traffic and services on each route named, and our conclusions and action on each are based upon such facts as we have found to exist. Our action on each route is based upon conditions as they now exist. We do not believe these conditions are permanent. In fact, the data supplied us show that they are slightly improving already.

"The commission will issue an order in accordance with conclusions announced in the foregoing. It will further direct that the company file with the commission, beginning with the month of January, until further order of the commission, monthly statements of its gross passenger receipts on each route and for the entire system. Like statements for the corresponding months of 1914 shall be also filed.

"Should it appear to the commission from a study of these statements as filed, that present conditions as to the company's traffic or services have materially changed, so that further reductions in service should be allowed, or services temporarily discontinued should be restored, the commission will pass the appropriate order after due notice to all concerned.

"A statement of gross passenger receipts of the company for twenty days of January, the latest date practicable at this time, shows a decrease as compared with the first twenty days of January, 1914, of $12,815.45, or 8.8 per cent, as compared with a decrease of 9.6 per cent in December and 9.7 per cent in November, 1914, under the corresponding months of 1913, so that the commission is hopeful that traffic will continue to improve."
